PREFACE.

After some years of study into the history of the Keyes family, in order to ascertain my own remote ancestry and connections, and without a thought of putting into print the result of my research, I yielded to the wishes of many of my name, and concluded to put the (at that time) scanty information I had gained, into a short, informal pamphlet. This may account for the want of consistent, artistic arrangement in the work, which, as I advanced and the field opened before me, I regretted, too late. But we do not expect from the pioneer, in new countries or new fields, what must of necessity belong to maturer knowledge and more complete development; and I am a pioneer in the Genealogy of the Keyes family.

In seeking my own ancestry, my first idea was to look for it in the line, at the head of which stood Robert of Watertown, and much material had been accumulated, and much advance made, before grave doubts arose in my mind (as to what has been assumed by many of those who have any knowledge of our Genealogy, namely) whether Solomon of Newbury and Chelmsford, was the son of Robert. Those doubts have not been, and probably cannot be, solved, at present. I feel sure that a relationship existed, and, until the mist enveloping their early history be cleared away, let us content ourselves, with having the Genealogy of their descendants. The records of later emigrants have been added, both to save the trouble of farther research in that direction in order to find the missing links in our own history, and because among them are names we might be proud to place beside our own.

I would remark that the numbers attached to individual names, in the regular series, have no significance as to the prominence of the individual, but are inserted to give an idea of the extent of the family, and for reference. Many names were received too late for numbering in their proper place, without breaking the general order of numbering.

Perhaps explanations of abbreviations or arrangement are unnecessary in these days when almost every family owns some Genealogical work, and I will only explain that the Roman numerals, at the left of various names in this work, indicate the generation; and the Arabic figures at the right, in parenthesis, refer to a preceding number in the regular series, where will be found the date of birth, with that of other members of the same family.

With regard to dates, and the spelling of names, they have been inserted as they were received, as far as the (in some cases) obscure chi-rography could be deciphered. Town and family records have been often at variance, and, for a decision between them, the judgment of the compiler has been the only resource.

Acknowledgments for assistance in collecting the early records of the family, are due to many of the town clerks of Massachusetts and Connecticut, and the histories of Marlboro, Newbury, Shrewsbury, Mass., Acworth, N. H., and Northfield, Vt., have afforded many items. To Hon. E. S. Keyes of Jay, Me., to C. W. Keyes, Esq., of Quincy, Ill., Capt. C. W. Keyes of Farmington, Me., Gen. E. D. Keyes, U. S. A., Hon. John S. Keyes of Concord, Mass., and the late lamented Judge Wade Keyes of Montgomery, Ala., our thanks are due; also to Rev. R. G. Keyes, of Watertown, N. Y., R. W. Clarke, Esq., of Brattleboro, and many others whose names we cannot here insert, for anecdotes and records.

PART FIRST.

ROBERT KEYES,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

I. 1. ROBERT KEYES settled in Watertown, Mass., some-time before, or in, the year 1633. The earliest record we find relating to him, is that of the birth of his eldest daughter.

CHILDREN OF ROBERT AND SARAH KEYES.

2. Sarah, b. May 26, 1633.
3. Peter, probably s. of Robert.
4. Rebecca, b. Mar. 17, 1637.
5. Phebe, b. June 17, 1639.
6. Mary, b. 1641, d. 1642.
7. Elias, b. May 20, 1643.
8. Mary, b. June 16, 1645.

The birth of all these children is recorded in Watertown, with the exception of Peter, and the second Mary, who was born in Newbury, Mass., and her birth there recorded. The death of Robert, is recorded at Watertown, Newbury, Plymouth and Sudbury, Mass. The Watertown record says: "Robert removed to Sudbury, Mass., June 16, 1645, where he died 1647." Another record, makes his death occur July 16, 1647. His history seems to be, that he was in Watertown, in 1633 if not earlier, removed to Newbury between 1643 and 1645, and to Sudbury during the latter year, and died in 1647. His widow was married to John Gage, in 1658, or according to the Plymouth record, Nov. 1664.

II. KEYES, SARAH (probably dau. of Robert), married Samuel Buzzell, 1656, at Salisbury, Mass.

II. KEYES, PETER (3), whose wife was Elizabeth, is mentioned in Plymouth and Sudbury records, as having a dau.,
9. Esther, b. Feb. 1668.

II. KEYES, ELIAS (7), of Sudbury, s. of Robert, m. Sarah, dau. of John Blanford, or Blanchard, Sept. 11, 1665.

CHILDREN, B. IN SUDBURY.

10. Elias, b. Nov. 15, 1666.
11. John, sup. s. of Elias, b. probably 1668.
12. James, b. Sept. 13, 1670.
13. Sarah, b. Apr. 9, 1673.
14. Thomas, b. Feb. 8, 1674.

III. KEYES, ELIAS (10), s. of Elias. We learn from "Ward's History of Shrewsbury," that Elias was in Marlboro, Mass., where he had a family, between 1696 and 1702. We find no record of his marriage there or elsewhere, or of the birth of children.

III. KEYES, JOHN (11), sup. s. of Elias of Sudbury, lived for a time in Lancaster, Mass. He first appeared in Shrewsbury as a town officer, in 1727, and was living in the North Parish, at Spring Garden, on house lot, No. 42, in 1729. This lot was granted to "John Keyes, Sen." Dec. 30, 1718. Ward, in his history of Shrewsbury says, "Dea. John Keyes, whose wife was Sarah, was one of the founders of this church, a strong pillar therein, and its first deacon." He was chosen 1723. He was one of the Selectmen, and Assessor, and the first Town Clerk. His name does not appear as a town officer after 1743, at which time he must have been at least 79 years of age. He is supposed to have d. about 1748, or '9.

CHILDREN.

15. Ebenezer, b. about the year 1700.
16. Phebe, who joined the church in Shrewsbury, 1728, and d. Sept. 16, 1748.
17. John, b. 1712.
18. Huldah, b. 1713, d. Dec. 19, 1726.
19. Elkanah, b. 1718, m. Elizabeth Warner, Jan. 11, 1759.
Elkanah, d. Jan. 19, 1806, at Harvard, Mass., aged 88.
Elizabeth, d. Mar. 30, 1816, at Harvard, aged 97.

IV. KEYES, EBENEZER (15) m. Tamar, dau. of Dea. Samuel Wheelock, July 31, 1726, and lived in the North Parish of Shrewsbury, now Boylston. He d. probably, about 1780.

CHILDREN.

20. Huldah, b. April 19, 1727, m. Elijah Rice, about 1748.
21. Elisha, b. Feb. 15, 1729.
22. Tamar, } b. Jan. 5, 1731, m. Jon Knight, of Worcester, Oct. 20, 1756.
23. Tryphena, } b. Jan. 5, 1731, m. Jacob Hinds, 1756.
24. Ebenezer, b. Nov. 4, 1733.
25. Hepsibah, b. June 2, 1736, m. Bezaleel Gleason of Worcester, Dec. 6. 1758.
26. Hannah, b. April 17, 1742, m. Ebenezer Drury, Oct. 29, 1761.

V. KEYES, ELISHA (21) m. Catherine Baker, dau. sup. of Thomas Baker, July 19, 1757, lived in the S. W. part of Shrewsbury, and d. there, Feb. 18, 1811. Catherine, his wife, d. Nov 9, 1797.

WILLARD KEYES.

It is fitting that a small space be given to commemorate the worth of one who through a long life bore living testimony to the value of a well balanced mind, united with inflexible integrity of purpose in all the affairs of life. The life of Willard Keyes was in more senses than one a successful life—not perhaps as the altogether worldly man estimates success—but in all that goes to make up a record for enterprise, honorable dealing, and true philanthropy, leaving behind a memory cherished and remembered by all who knew him—in this his life was a grand success.

The only record we have of his earlier years, is from a diary, from which we should like to quote largely, did the plan and scope of this work allow. This diary, kept from 1817 to 1820, shows that the moral excellence which he afterward attained, and the influence for good which he exercised, were the result of high aims and resolves in early life. He says:

“I was born among the rugged mountains of Vermont, whose robust inhabitants are mostly cultivators of the soil they possess, in independence and peace, and where luxury and dissipation, those deadly foes to religion and liberty are hardly known. My father removed from Shrewsbury, Mass., to Newfane, Vt., about the year 1788, and entered on a small farm, entirely new, and with a soil as rough and heavily timbered, as perhaps any of the Vermont mountains produce.”

After alluding to the large family which his father brought up in habits of industry, he says: “The country being new, I had but a slender chance of getting instruction at school. However, I was early taught that learning was better than riches, that without education I should be liable to repeated embarrassments and must expect to rank with the dregs of society. These early precepts and a natural taste thereto, excited me to learning, and reading soon became my ruling passion, and every leisure moment was employed in poring over some musty author. Days, weeks and years glided by with little variation, and reading continued to be my chief delight.”

In his twentieth year Mr. Keyes served a three months campaign as a volunteer in the war of 1812, and the succeeding five years were varied by farm work in summer and teaching school in winter. But this monotonous life was illy calculated to satisfy the requirements of a disposition naturally so enterprising and ambitious. So on the 2nd day of June, 1817, we find him setting forth on foot, with a scantily filled purse, to seek his fortune in the far West, at that time little more than a desolate wilderness.

At the end of a month he had reached Oswego, on the shores of Lake Ontario, performing nearly the entire journey on foot. Crossing the lake to Toronto (then called York), he fell in with a party of gentlemen from New York City, on their way to examine a large tract of land on the Mississippi, at Prairie du Chien, and was persuaded to join the party.

From this point the narrative portrays with fascinating vividness the adventures of the party, as in their boat propelled by oar and sail, they coasted along the shores of the great lakes, camping out in the wilderness each night.

Their course was from Toronto north by land to Lake Simcoe, thence with their own boat through the river that connects the latter with lake Huron, thence along the shore of that lake, and through the straits of Mackinac into Lake Michigan.

From the head of Green Bay, they went by the Fox river to the portage, where it became necessary to transport their boat overland, a distance of little over a mile, to the Wisconsin river and down the Wisconsin to its junction with the Mississippi at Prairie du Chien. The route was about 2000 miles.

Mr. Keyes passed a year and a half at Prairie du Chien, engaged in such pursuits as opportunity offered. The winter of 1818-19, was spent in the prairies of Black River, amid hardships and privations which we of later times can perhaps have no conception. The early spring finds him afloat on the broad waters of the Mississippi, sole proprietor of a large raft of pine timber, and with one assistant he sets forth for St. Louis, where in due time he arrives in safety and disposes of his raft for a good price. The ensuing fall and winter were passed in explorations, with a view to finding a place, which by the aid of a strong arm and a willing heart, could be made to serve for a home.

This spot, however, was not found until some three years later, when with Mr. John Wood (since Governor of the State of Ill.), he built his cabin where now stands the beautiful city of Quincy, Ill.

In a sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Emory, in 1861, upon the occasion of the death of Judge Snow, also an early resident of Quincy, he says (in allusion to Willard Keyes, Esq.) "In 1821 sometime during the month of September, forty years ago, lacking nine months, an adventurous traveller, journeying from the South, was overtaken by the night, as he reached what is now the city of Quincy. He built a camp-fire on the banks of the river, turned out his horse to graze, and clambered up the steep bluff to enjoy the prospect. It was a pleasing prospect. The country was well timbered, well watered, choice streams, noble forests, grand old trees of a century's growth, rich lands, a magnificent river, the father of waters, vast facilities for a settlement, a livelihood and a trade, were opened up before the bright vision of our traveller, and as he laid himself down to sleep that night, doubtless his dreams of the years to come, made him quite ready to resolve—as is recorded of him—that if 'God would give him a foothold here, he would make it his dwelling place in all the future, nor would he forget God, and fail to speak of his goodness.' That resolve built the first log cabin in Quincy, in 1823, a year or two afterward, under the bluff, on what is now called Front Street, and was the happy home of the three first settlers, Keyes, Rose and Wood. That resolve did more and better. It prepared the way for a church organization in Quincy, which was effected in Dec. of 1830."

Here he lived and labored for almost fifty years, and here he died honored and respected, as one of the founders and fathers of a large and prosperous city. With what anxious solicitude he watched the gradual growth and development of this infant settlement, from a desolate wilderness to a populous city there are few left to testify.

His life was marked by a rare spirit of enterprise and progress, coupled with an unyielding integrity that won for him respect and friends from all classes with whom he came in contact. He possessed a quiet and inoffensive disposition, with a want of self assertion which prompted him to shun rather than to seek for public life or station, for which otherwise he would have been well fitted.

He loved a generous act for its own sake, and for the sake of the inward consciousness it brought of a duty fulfilled. He was always ready to extend a helping hand to suffering and needy humanity, and this quality led him to feel and express a large measure of sympathy for the negro in slavery, and he was an active and outspoken abolitionist, at a time when to be such was unpopular with a large portion of the community.

For many years, and up to the time of his death he was deacon in the church (Cong), which he was instrumental in founding.

Feeling keenly his own lack of educational advantages, it was his earnest wish to give his own children a liberal education, and to exert his influence for the establishment of educational institutions, at home and abroad. To this end he gave liberally to the endowment of a Professorship in the Chicago Theological Seminary. But at the solicitation of the managers of that institution, he consented to a diversion of the fund, and it was applied instead to the construction of the original Seminary building bearing the name of Keyes Hall.

Here ends the record of the family of James Keyes, 3d s. of Elias of Sudbury.

III. KEYES, THOMAS (14), youngest s. of Elias, of Sudbury, and g. s. of Robert, m. in 1698, Elizabeth, dau. of John Howe (spelled How in the old records), and g. d. of John and Mary Howe, 1st white settlers of the town of Marlboro, Mass. She was sister of Mrs. Peter Josslyn, of Lancaster, Mass., and in 1692, when a young girl, while visiting her sister, was taken captive by the Indians and carried to Canada. She remained there four years, when she was redeemed by government, returned home and m. Thomas, afterward, Dea. Thomas Keyes, to whom she was engaged before her captivity. It was sixteen years earlier that the town was attacked by 1,500 Indians and destroyed, and numbers carried into captivity. But Lancaster was, for many years, a frontier town, and it was probably during some raid of lesser historical moment that her capture occurred. Dea. Thomas Keyes and wife settled on a new farm in the East part of Marlboro, where they resided during their lives, and which is still in possession of the descendants of Dinah, who m. John Weeks.

JONATHAN KEYES, JR.

It is said that somewhere about the year 1774, Jonathan Keyes, Jr., in company with one Richardson, taking with him his son Ebenezer, then about fourteen, went into the woods at Bethel or Rumford, Me. In the Autumn following, he went back to Massachusetts, leaving his son in the care of the Indians, but returning to him in the Spring. The next Autumn, Ebenezer, finding the same treatment to be repeated, ran away, going by a spotted line to Massachusetts, where he enlisted in the Revolutionary Army, and served three years. It is thought by some that Jonathan returned to Shrewsbury after this escapade of his son, and did not again appear in the Maine woods for two or three years. Be that as it may, "It was in December, 1776, that Jonathan, then said to be of Shrewsbury, Mass., purchased four rights in the township of New Pennacook, now Rumford, Me. This township was situated on both sides of the Androscoggin River, in the present county of Oxford, seventy miles from Portland. It had just been granted to Timothy Walker and others, of Concord, N. H. On the 10th of March, 1777, Mr. Keyes, with his wife and youngest son Francis, set out from Shrewsbury, for New Gloucester, Me., then a border town. The distance was 50 miles to New Pennacook, from New Gloucester, where he left his wife, and with his son, then about twelve years of age, made the journey through the wilderness, arriving at New Pennacook, in August. He commenced a clearing in the place which he afterward occupied, and which he transmitted to his son Francis. His wife joined him in the Autumn of 1779, making the journey on foot, and was the first white woman in the settlement. Mr. Keyes frequently went to New Gloucester while his wife was there, leaving his son in care of the Indians, under whose instructions he learned to shoot, and soon became familiar with the use of the bow and arrow. Other families began to move in, and in 1781 there were four or five families in the township. In the month of August, 1781, a party of St. Francis Indians from Canada, made a raid into Sudbury, now Bethel, Canada, a township joining New Pennacook on the West, and in which were ten families. The Indians killed some and carried others captive into Canada. The settlers of New Pennacook, alarmed for their own safety, fled through the wilderness to New Gloucester. Mr. Keyes did not return to his farm until the Spring of 1783, when he found his cabin as he left it. The settlers were now unmolested, and the township rapidly filled up. Mr. Keyes settled on a beautiful interval farm, which he cultivated to the time of his death. He was a man of great physical powers, and a fine specimen of a pioneer settler of Maine. He d. Nov. 9, 1786, aged 58. His wife Sarah d. Nov. 14, 1799, aged 75.

VI. KEYES, EBENEZER (300), then a resident of Shrewsbury, bought a farm, Dec. 10, 1784, in that part of Gardiner, Mass., which was formerly Templeton, and June 12, 1787, m. Jemima Jackson, b. March 11, 1765. June 7, 1805, he bought Lot 14, Range 7, in Jay, Me., and moved his family to it, Jan. 1806, and spent there the remainder of his life. He was an eccentric old gentleman, and believed in all events both of fact or fortune changing once in seven years. He died at Jay, Me., May 31, 1838, aged 77 years, 7 months and 7 days.

His name was K-e-y-e-s, but because they called him Keys, he dropped the first e, when he moved to Jay.

VI. KEYES, SALMA (301), left home when a boy, and for many years there was no news of him. At length a letter came, post-marked "Keyes Mills, Va." Letters directed to that place were never answered, and nothing more is known of him.

VI. KEYES, FRANCIS (302), youngest s. of Jonathan Keyes, Jr., was about twelve years of age when his parents moved to Maine. His means of obtaining even the rudiments of an education were very limited, but he made the best use of what he had. He was chosen Clerk of the plantation of New Pennacook, at the time of its organization, and of the town of Rumford, at its incorporation, and filled the office with ability and fidelity for many years. He was a surveyor of land and draughtsman, a Justice of the Peace, and a useful citizen of the new town. He married Dolly, daughter of Josiah and Molly (Crocker) Bean of Sudbury, now Bethel, Canada. The father of Dolly was descended from Lewis Bean or Bane, who came from the Isle of Jersey, and was an early settler of York, Me.

VII. KEYES, SALLY (416), m. Nov. 13, 1813, Peter C. Virgin of Rumford, Me., youngest son of Ebenezer and Dorcas (Lovejoy) Virgin, of Concord, N. H. He was born in Concord, July 23, 1783. His grand-father, Ebenezer Virgin, came from England about the year 1722, was one of the first proprietors of Pennacook, now Concord, N. H., and one of the very first settlers. He married Mary Chandler of Andover, Mass. Peter Chandler Virgin came quite early to Maine, and opened a law office at Rumford corner, where he resided more than sixty years. He served two terms in the Mass. Gen. Court, before the separation, was a member of the Convention that formed the constitution of Maine, and of the first and second Maine Legislatures. He was County Attorney for Oxford County and Postmaster at Rumford many years, besides holding other offices of honor and trust. He was a safe Counsellor, a good advocate, a gentleman of the Old School. For a long time he was the Nestor of the Oxford County Bar, and when he passed to the better land, and his erect and venerable form was missed from the Court room, a vacancy was made which was not easily to be filled.

PART SECOND.

SOLOMON KEYES

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

I. 1. SOLOMON KEYES. A tradition prevailed among the earlier descendants of Solomon, and is now current among the older members of the "Keyes" family, that two brothers from England, settled in this country and were the ancestors of all of the name in America. Various names have been ascribed to the brothers, and different ports have been mentioned as their place of landing, but I find no record relating to either of them, earlier than that of the marriage of

"Solomon Keies and Frances Grant at Newbury, Mass., Oct. 2, 1653."

The birth of the five elder children is recorded at Newbury.

In 1664 and 1665, Solomon and Joseph Keyes took up land in Chelmsford, Mass., and in that town is recorded the birth of the other children of Solomon and Frances.

There appears to be no record of the marriage of Joseph, supposed to be the brother of Solomon, or of the birth of children. He might have had children born in England, or before he came to this country.

Solomon was town clerk and tything man in Chelmsford, and seems to have been a man of influence in those early days.

"The old Keyes homestead, par excellence, a roomy, two story white house, now more than two hundred years old, stands in the town of Westford, which was set off from Chelmsford, and incorporated in 1729, and most of the families of the name in that vicinity, are now said to be of Westford. The village according to an old writer, is handsomely situated on a swell of fine land, commanding a beautiful prospect of great extent, and contains an academy of ancient date and respectable standing."

There are beautiful views of the Monadnock mountain from certain points in the town, and a fair amount of summer visitors, gives variety to the society, while the academy gives to it a tone of unusual intelligence.

In an old town book of Chelmsford, we find the following:

"Sar g nt Solomon Keys, dyed, Mch 28, 1702."

His wife Frances, died, 1708.

The name is spelled Keyes in the Newbury records, with one exception, where the second e is omitted, probably by mistake. At Chelmsford, the records make it Keies, generally, during the life of Solomon, although during the few years preceding, (as in the record of) his death, we find it sometimes Keys.

17. Ruth, b. June 8, 1707.
18. Zebediah, b. Jan. 11, 1710. s. of Solomon and Priscilla, 2d wife.

III. KEYES, ELIAS (12), s. of Solomon and Mary, and grandson of Solomon and Frances, m. Mary ———

CHILDREN.

19. Ephraim, b. July 5, 1715.
20. Stephen, b. July 15, 1717.
21. Sampson, b. Nov. 21, 1719.
22. Mary, b. Jan. 19, 1721.
23. Zechariah, b. Jan. 5, 1723.
24. Solomon, b. July 15, 1728.

Elias d. Feb. 22, 1767.

Mary, his wife, d. Nov. 27, 1753, aged 58.

Elias was born in Chelmsford, and was perhaps married elsewhere, as, although we find no record of his marriage in Chelmsford, we find that of the birth of the two elder children. The record of these two children of Elias and Mary is also found in Ashford, Conn., together with that of their other children. An Elias Keyes was one of the original proprietors of Londonderry, New Hampshire, which was settled in 1719, by a colony of Presbyterians from the vicinity of the city of Londonderry, in the north of Ireland, to which place their ancestors had emigrated about a century before from Scotland. They came to New England in the summer of 1718, and applied to the government of Mass., for the grant of a township, and were allowed to select a place for their location. Having selected Londonderry, sixteen families accompanied by their pastor, took possession of the place and in 1720 purchased the Indian title. If the Elias mentioned as having been there from 1720 to 1735, emigrated with the party from Ireland, who are his descendants? If not one of the emigrants, it is possible that Elias, the son of Solomon, prospected in the wilds of New Hampshire, previous to his removal to Ashford, Conn. It is also possible that Elias, son of Elias of Sudbury, of whose settlement, wife or children we know nothing, might have taken up land in Londonderry, and lived there those fifteen years. He would have been more than fifty years old at that time. It is curious, that although Ward mentions that Elias had a family in Marlboro', between the years 1696 and 1702, he does not give names or dates.

IV. KEYES, LIEUT. EPHRAIM (19), eldest son of Elias and Mary, m. 1st, Sarah Wadkins, at Ashford, Conn. He m. 2d, widow Glazier of Rockingham, N. H. He removed from Ashford to Acworth, N. H., in 1769, one year later than his son William, and died at Acworth, Sept. 6, 1802. His wife Sarah, died June 15, 1790, in the 71st year of her age. The birth of the two brothers Ephraim and Stephen, recorded both in Chelmsford and Ashford as the children of Elias and Mary, leaves no doubt as to the identity of Ephraim. Add to this that the names of Elias and his family disappear from the Chelmsford records after the birth of Stephen in 1717, while the record is continued in Ashford.

CHILDREN OF EPHRAIM AND SARAH.

25. William, b. Oct., 1740, at Ashford, Conn.

26. John, who gave part of the common to the town of Acworth, but probably never lived there. We have no clue to him, unless he was the founder of the Keeseville family whose first ancestor is supposed to have been named John, and who must have been born about the time of the son of Ephraim.

27. Sally. The wife of Perley Keyes, grandson of Ephraim, remembered a daughter of Ephraim of this name who married Nathan Wales. Perhaps the Nathan Wales, Jr., who married (as Justice of the Peace) John, afterward Gen. John Keyes and Mary Wales, at Ashford, Conn., in 1767. If so, she must have been one of the older children of Ephraim.

28. Edward, b. 1746, d. at Acworth, July 24, 1823.

29. Jonas, b. 1748, d. at Acworth, July 8, 1820.

30. Joseph, d. of measles contracted in the Revolutionary War.

31. Heiress. In a list of the children of Ephraim, in possession of one of his descendants, the name of Heiress is found last on the list, but it does not appear that she was the youngest. Perhaps she was born about 1752. That such a person really existed there is no doubt, as she married Henry Coffeen and they moved from Acworth to Schuylers, N. Y., where he acted as County Judge. In 1799 he bought land in Watertown, N. Y., and moved there in the year 1800, being, if not the first settler, among the first. His mother belonged to a prominent family of N. H., the Hale family, and they had a son, named Hale.

32. Hannah, b. Jan. 20, 1754.

33. Henry, b. probably about 1756 or 7. Of weak mind owing to an accident in childhood, and lived with his brother Amos. The Acworth Register gives the date of his death as May 25, 1792, in his 34th year, which would make the date of his birth 1758.

This must be a mistake, as the next son, Frederic, was born that year.

34. Frederic, b. 1758, m. Sarah Grout, and had one son,

35. Frederick, bap. June 23, 1785, who d. young.

Frederic was in the Revolutionary War. He d. April 30, 1785, and his widow m. 2d, Eusebius Silsby. Their son Joseph, m. Mary, dau. of Amos and Polly (Grout) Keyes.

36. Amos, b. 1761, d. in Acworth, Aug. 30, 1820.

V. KEYES, CAPT. WILLIAM (25), supposed to be the eldest son of Ephraim, m. in 1767, Hannah, dau. of Stephen and Margaret (Stowell) Scarborough. She was born Sept. 18, 1744.

William Keyes was the first settler of Acworth, N. H., moving to that place in 1768, his wife Hannah and one child Huldah, with his ox team, a common mode of conveyance among the early settlers. A log house would be in place for their first dwelling. Upon this subject the chronicles are silent, but it is recorded that in 1797, Capt. William moved into his new house, where probably his grandson, Perley G., son of Perley and Lucinda (White) Keyes, was born in 1798. He was in the Revolutionary War, and died April 21, 1813.

Hannah, the wife of Capt. William, was of tall stature, a feature which many of her descendants have inherited. She d. Feb. 26, 1808, aged 63.

CHILDREN.

VI. KEYES, PERLEY (41), 5th child of Capt. William, m. Nov. 20, 1796, Lucinda White, b. Feb. 28, 1776, supposed to be a descendant of Peregrine White, the first child born in New England after the landing of the Pilgrims. Peregrine White d. 1704, aged 83, and was buried on Webster's farm at Marshfield. Lucinda White went to Walpole, N. H., Oct. 4, 1795, and to Acworth, May 7, 1796, was m. Nov. 20, the same year. She had a retentive memory, and kept a diary, from which have been gathered many facts relating to the earlier members of the Acworth families.

Perley Keyes, soon after the Rev. War, went to Saratoga Co., N. Y., and engaged in lumbering on the Hudson River. In 1799, he took up 300 acres of land in what is now Rutland, Jeff Co., N. Y., and moved there in 1800. He removed to Watertown, five miles from Rutland, in 1809, and became a prominent man in Jeff Co., holding successively the offices of Magistrate, Judge of the County Court, Sheriff and Coll. of Customs at Sackett's Harbor. Was twice State Senator, and once a member of the Council of Appointment. He wielded a strong political influence in Jeff Co., and when in the Legislature, made his presence felt. He was the personal, as well as the political friend of such men as Silas Wright, Jr., Will L. Marcy, Martin Van Buren, &c. In a letter from the above mentioned gentlemen and others, to Van Buren in 1830, recommending him for the office of Gov. of the territory of Wis., they speak of him as a plain, unlearned man, with a sound, strong mind, and in the practical exercise of an unusual amount of common sense. A correspondent of the Utica Observer writes: "No man ever lived in Jeff Co., who, for a quarter of a century, exercised so great a political influence as Perley Keyes." He was nicknamed the "King" by his political opponents. Among the best known anecdotes of Judge Keyes, is that of the "Whittlesey case," familiar to the readers of the Acworth history, where also may be found the way in which, as a boy, he turned the tables upon Capt. Duncan, his military commander. The following has never been in print, and will illustrate his facility at repartee.

Micah Sterling, one of the ablest lawyers of Jefferson county, N. Y., where Keyes resided, in a heated political discussion, had been knocked down by Sam Brown, the brother of Gen. Jacob Brown. Shortly after this occurrence, a couple of hogs belonging to Judge Keyes, had broken out into the highway, and been shut up in the Pound. As the Pound Master knew very well that it was an accident, Keyes was indignant, and going to the Pound, without further ceremony lifted his hogs, which weighed some two hundred pounds apiece, out of the enclosure, and proceeded to drive them home. Quite a number witnessed the performance, and among them Micah Sterling. As Judge Keyes passed by, driving his pigs before him, Sterling thought it a good opportunity to banter him, and cried out, "Keyes, I understand that you can handle a hog better than any man in Jefferson county." Keyes's quick retort was, "Oh, no, Sterling, not as well as Sam. Brown."

V. KEYES, COL. STEPHEN (270), 2d s. of Stephen, emigrated to Vt., about the year 1791. He is said to have studied, but did not practice, law, in Vermont, but "became one of the earliest merchants of Burlington, at a time not remote from its settlement, when there were not more than seven framed houses in the village," and except on Water St. and its neighborhood, the forest was almost unbroken.

The following anecdote of him, in giving an account of the visit to this country of Prince Edward, afterward Duke of Kent, in 1793, is taken from Miss Hemenway's Vt. Gazetteer.

"Among the earlier settlers of Burlington was Col. Stephen Keyes, a gentleman of the old school, who wore a cocked hat, kept a hotel on Water street, and was collector for the district of Vt. He proposed to pay his respects to the Prince, and with several young gentlemen of the village, made a call in the evening. Col. Keyes introduced himself to the Prince, and then stated that he had brought with him some young gentlemen of the law and merchants, who wished to pay their respects to him. Among those young gentlemen were Elnathan Keyes, Joshua Stanton, Levi Henri and Zacheus Peaslie. They were severally presented, and the Prince respectfully bowed to each. This was apparently the commencement of a pleasant evenings entertainment. It opened auspiciously if not flatteringly to the Col. and his party, but what must have been their dismay, when the Prince and his aids very informally and abruptly retired to their own apartments without deigning an apology or an explanation. The Col. would not brook this, and in unmeasured terms and unchosen phrases vented his indignation and among the mildest of his expressions, said the prince was no gentleman.

An anecdote of the Col. should here be told, which will illustrate the effect which this rebuff was likely to produce. Two or three British officers with their dogs stopped at the Hotel kept by the Colonel. It was a humble house, but its best and largest north room, kept in the nicest order, with its clean sanded floor, was not an uninviting place for British gentlemen to dine in, and particularly on such a dinner as the Col. never failed to set forth. The officers went in to dinner, with their dogs, which they soon begun to feed on the floor. The Col. looked upon it as an indignity and bringing in a brace of loaded pistols, laid them formally on the table, and denouncing the conduct of the officers, swore he would protect the respectability of his house, and was ready to do it."

Col. Stephen Keyes m. Elizabeth, dau. of the late Col. Elisha Sheldon of the Rev. War, and sister of Maj. Sheldon. Col. Stephen d. at St. Albans, Vt., about 1804.

V. KEYES, JOHN (306), son of Sampson, Sr. "Ashford, Sept. 28, A. D., 1767. These may certify that Mr. John Keyes of said Ashford, son of Mr. Sampson Keyes of said town, was this day joined in marriage with Miss Mary Wales, dau. to Capt. Elisha Wales of said Ashford, by Mr. Nathan Wales, Jr., Justice of the Peace."—Ashford Record.

Gen. John Keyes, a commissioned officer for the State of Conn., was the companion in boyhood and mature years of Gen. Israel Putnam and Col. Thomas Knowlton, and, with the latter, who married his sister, Anna, he was always on the most intimate terms of friendship. He was also under Col. Knowlton when that officer fell, at Harlem Heights, in 1776. He was a most devoted patriot, and contributed his energies and property freely to his country's cause. It is said that he kept eight of his negroes in the service, throughout the Revolutionary War. He was not without his peculiarities. He frequently took his negro servant Cæsar, behind him on his horse in going to Battle. A lady of Schenectady, a descendant of Gen. John, says: "I have heard much of his servant Cæsar, he was with his master through the war, and in the battle of Bunker Hill, in the midst of the fight, a brave soldier."

Soon after the war, he emigrated to Vermont, where he probably remained but a short time, and subsequently having obtained a township, under the Act of Congress, according grants to the officers and soldiers of the Revolution, removed to Canajoharie, N. Y., then a wilderness. He resided at intervals with his son Zackariah, at Amsterdam, N. Y., then an important point, seven miles west of Schenectady.

A slave holder, and living at a time when social distinctions were pronounced and acknowledged, the habits of the camp did not detract from the influences which made him a pronounced and punctilious gentleman of the old school. Besides being thoroughly public spirited, he was very generous, also genial, methodical, prompt and honest, and very tenacious in adhering to friendships.

The following is taken from the Charlestown Courier, a newspaper of the period, published in Montgomery Co., about thirty miles west of Schenectady:

"Died, in the town of Canajoharie, Montgomery Co., N. Y., on 13th inst. (13th April, 1824), Gen. John Keyes, aged 80 years. As a Revolutionary officer, he exhibited a peculiar degree of devotion to his country's cause—regardless alike of fatigue and danger. He has lived many years to share the fruits of that Revolution, in the obtaining of which he acted an honorable part. He retained to the day of his death, a degree of vigor, both of body and mind, which the ravages of eighty years leave to but few. The day previous to his death, he rode nearly three miles to transact some business with tenants on land, of which he had the agency. After his return he retired at his usual hour, and in apparent health. At about three o'clock next morning, he was discovered lifeless, having expired apparently without a struggle. As a friend he was ardent; as a neighbor, benevolent; and in his death the community sustains a very sensible loss.

Mary, his wife, and the mother of his children, d. in Montgomery Co., N. Y., Sept. 11, 1806, and he m. 2d, Oct. 18, 1807, at Farmington, Conn., Mercy Scott, a lady much younger than himself, spoken of by the grandchildren as an accomplished and elegant woman. She m. 2d, Capt. Palmer of Stillwater, N. Y., who served under Gen. Gates at Saratoga. They lived at Stillwater, on an elevation adjoining and overlooking the battle field. She died at Geneva, N. Y., at the age of 92, about the year 1860.

VI. KEYES, ALMIRA C. (318), youngest child of Gen. John Keyes, was born probably in Conn., and emigrated with her father to Canajoharie, N. Y. In 1795 she was a member of the first fashionable boarding school that was established west of Albany, held in a log house at Cooperstown, N. Y. Fennimore Cooper, the novelest, then a four years old, attended, and was described by Mrs. Peck as a fretful child, fond of following the girls. A French master taught music, dancing and drawing. At this early age she showed great self-reliance and fondness for adventure. One day a sleigh, loaded with produce, passed the school, on its way to Troy. Taking a school-mate with her, she jumped on, in a frolic, and the two children continued, what, in the then sparsely settled condition of the country and the hardness of the roads, was considered a very adventurous journey, to its end. The advent of such youthful visitors in midwinter, from such a distance and by open conveyance excited the astonishment and admiration of the hospitable Trojans, to whom Gen. K. was well known. Social parties in honor of the little truants became the order of the day. These terminated only in the arrival of Gen. K., in quest of the little runaways. In 1808, she m. John Peck (see Peck Gen., page 301), who became a prominent merchant, and from 1832 to 1855, was an active co-worker in nearly all the leading enterprises of the day.

Her father disliked the match. His consent however, was not waited for, yet it is presumed that he became reconciled, for as a token of his good wishes, his daughter received three silver table, and six silver tea spoons. Mrs. Peck had great force of character, decided opinions, was quite frank and thoroughly honest in their utterance. Of course she made many enemies and many sturdy friends. She was a devoted mother, and a reliable and exceedingly tenacious friend.

Almira (Keyes) and John Peck had ten children, of whom four died in childhood. The surviving six were,

341. John Henry, eldest son of Almira, b. Dec. 24, 1810, in Burlington, Vt., was educated a merchant, but the last year of his minority, owing to weak health, was spent in travelling in the South, the West Indies, and southern Europe. He was for a time, a member of the firm of J. & J. H. Peck, was prominent and active in several railroad enterprises in Vt., and in 1855 removed to New York City, and was there engaged in prominent railroad and other enterprises, until failing health compelled his return to his native place in 1874. He d. of heart disease at Burlington, Aug. 18, 1877, was buried at Lake View Cemetery. Col. Peck was a man of fine culture, of courtly and dignified demeanor, and of true delicacy of feeling. In 1833, he m. Mary, dau. of the late Luther Loomis, Esq. She d. in 1834. Their son, Charles Loomis Peck, b. 1834, d. and was buried in Lone Mountain Cemetery, San Francisco. He m. 2d, in 1837, Lucia, dau. of the late Harry Bradley, Esq. She now res. in Burlington, Vt.

342. J. Cassius Pomeroy, 2d son of Almira, b. in Burlington, Dec. 17, 1812, studied at Castleton, and at U. V. M., which he left an undergraduate in 1829. He was in the mercantile business at Ausable Forks and at Burlington, also in New York city. He was Gen. of Militia in Vt., and was generally known as Gen. Peck. In 1833, he m. Lucia, dau. of the late Col. Marmaduke Wait, of the war of 1812. He d. suddenly of apoplexy, at the residence of Mrs Joseph Wait, his sister-in-law, in Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 5, 1872. His widow d. of rheumatism of the heart, in Hyde Park, T. U., June 19, 1878, and was buried in Lake View Cemetery.

343. Theodore Augustus, 4th s. of Almira, b. in Burlington, Aug. 8, 1817, was druggist and apothecary and had one of the most tasteful establishments in the Union. Was in business in Burlington from 1840 to 1862, when he removed to Watertown, N. Y. In 1842, he m. Delia, 4th dau. of Rev. Hiram Safford, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Burlington, who, assisted by Rev. Geo. Ingersoll, performed the marriage ceremony. He d. suddenly, of apoplexy of the heart, May 18, 1872, and his remains lie in Lake View Cemetery. Their surviving children, b. in Burlington, are,

344. Theodore Safford, b. Mar. 22, 1843, who served creditably in the war of the Rebellion, having entered the military service as a private and returned a captain. Afterward he was appointed chief of staff to the Governor, with the rank of Colonel. He was also made Col. of the 1st Reg. of Infantry, N. G. Vt., is now Col. Commanding, 1st and only Reg. Vt. Vols. and State Guard. Res. Burlington.

His health failing, he made a cod fishing voyage in 1838, to Labrador, and spent the winter of 1839-40, in the West India Islands. He was admitted to the Bar, in 1841, but giving up the practice on account of ill health, he shipped before the mast, and following the sea for a time, finally landed in San Francisco in Dec., 1849. He was at Big Bar, a noted mining camp on American River, and opened a law office at Dutch Flat, in Placer Co. He taught the first school in Sacramento, was teacher and Dept. Supt. of the San Francisco Industrial School, and Principal of the Spring Valley Grammar School. He finally purchased a farm in El Monte, Los Angeles Co., in which county he has been School Superintendant two years. Res. El Monte. V. KEYES, JAMES, SEN. (308), s. of Sampson, Sen., b. at Ashford, Conn., m. Miriam Badcock, and in 1780, moved to Andover, Vt., four years after the settlement of the town. Here his eldest s. James, was b., the first male child b. in the place, and here they were subject to all the hardships of pioneer life. A descendant relates that Miriam rode six miles on horseback, to an adjoining town for fire, one day, when the male members of the family were absent hunting, Miriam also plumed herself on being the smartest and handsomest woman in town, when she was the only one there. Tired of life in the backwoods, and the severity of Vermont winters, James, after a year or two, returned to Mass., probably remaining in Mason, N. H., two years. "James Keyes was taxed in Mason in 1781 and 1782."

He afterward settled in Northboro, Mass., where is the record of birth of his seven younger children, and where he lived and died. He represented the town in the State Legislature nine years, and d. Dec. 18, 1824.

V. KEYES, ELIAS (438), 2d s. of Solomon and Sarah, emigrated to Vt., and with John Durkee, Asa Whitcomb and Joshua Bartlet, commenced the settlement of Stockbridge, in Windsor Co., in 1783. He was a lawyer, Judge of the County Court, Member of Congress for that district, and "held most of the offices in the gift of the town, for many years." He was a tall, large featured man, somewhat careless in his dress, and of great simplicity of character.

Judge Elias Keyes, d. July 9, 1844.

Olive, his wife, d. March 18, 1843, aged 83, and both were buried in Stockbridge.

"The Judge possessed a strongly marked character, and lived in times when one's individualism was but little shaped and restricted by the conventionalisms of polished society. A lover of abstract justice, a hater of shams, he was nevertheless almost grotesque in his peculiarities, as the following anecdote related of him will show.

While holding his Court in Windsor County, a worthless fellow was tried and convicted before him for stealing a lot of boots and shoes from Gen. F., a leading man and merchant of the county. When his Honor come to pass sentence upon the prisoner, after treating the poor fellow to a severe lesson upon the nature and gravity of his offence in a general way, he broke out in this wise.

'Prisoner, you not only must steal these boots and shoes, not from some worthless fellow like yourself, but must needs add to the turpitude of the offence by stealing them from Gen. F., one of the most respectable and respected men of the county, and for this perverseness, I shall add one year more to the term of your imprisonment.' "

The following anecdote is probably familiar to many.

Judge Keyes of Vermont had about him a large number of workmen. Among them was a young man named Amasa. One day he ordered Amasa, or as the Judge always called him, Sampson, to cut down a crooked unsightly tree, on the brink of his mill pond.

The Judge stood by, watching the progress of the work. "Sampson" was, like most young Vermonters, at home with the ax, and soon reached the heart of the tree; two or three strokes more would suffice. Seeing the Judge was in a position to be hit by the limbs of the tree when it fell, he said:

"You had better move, Judge, or you will be hit."

"Cut the tree right down, Sampson," was the response.

Two more strokes, and then, seeing that unless the Judge moved, he would be hit sure, Sampson renewed his suggestion.

"Cut the tree right down, Sampson, just as the old man tells you," said the Judge.

One more stroke, and the last; down came the tree, and down came the old Judge also, into the water. Sampson quickly jumped into the water, and dragged him on shore, his face all scratched and bleeding, and nearly strangled by his sudden bath. Blowing the water from his mouth, like a spouting whale, and wiping his face, he said:

"That's right, Sampson, that's right; always do just as the old man tells you."

The father of Mrs. Keyes, James B. Clarke, was a graduate of Yale, and a lawyer, a man of property and culture. Her grandfather Clarke was a native of Scotland, educated, and a vestryman of Trinity Church, New York, in Revolutionary days.

Erasmus D. was fifteen years old when he left Brimfield, and went to Maine to live with his uncle (by marriage) Morse, with a view to becoming a soldier, in opposition to the wishes of his father, who preferred for his son, a mercantile career. He applied through the Hon. Peleg Sprague, Kenn Co., Me., M. C., for a Cadet's warrant, and failing one year, renewed the application in the winter of 1827-8. Mr. Sprague being unable to obtain the warrant, wrote him, advising to give up the search. Our young aspirant however, immediately wrote a full account of himself to Barbour, Sec. of War, asking for an appointment as Cadet, which he received by return mail. He was eighteen years old when he entered the West Point Military Academy, and graduated, June, 1832, tenth in a class which entered (July 1, 1828), one hundred and thirty in number. On graduating, he immediately volunteered for the Black Hawk war, and took service with a detachment of recruits, as far as Buffalo, and thence to Detroit, where on the morning of their arrival, the Asiatic Cholera broke out, on the steamer, "Robert Paine." The infected were left in a hospital near the city, and the others sped on by water, to Fort Dearborn on the present site of Chicago. Shortly after leaving Detroit, the pestilence appeared on their steamboat, and the cases increased so rapidly that all disembarked at the village of St. Clair, and the following morning, only two men reported for duty. It is said that at that early stage of his military life, amid the universal panic, the young soldier exhibited the coolness and composure which were his companions in his subsequent career, reading from some book of poetry he had with him, and committing various passages to memory.

The command to which he was attached, being destroyed by cholera, he was ordered back to West Point, and was attacked by the disease on the way, and laid up for a time at Rochester. His next attempt at war, according to his own account, was in Charleston Harbor, in Nov., 1832, at which time, Gen. Scott was in command on shore. Having attracted the notice of Gen. Scott, he was ordered to join the staff of that Gen. in 1833, and only left it in the Autumn of 1838, to accept promotion, to be Captain and Ass't Adjutant General. He was ordered to join Gen. Gaines at St. Louis, but did not remain long, and accepted Gen. Scott's invitation to return to his staff, remaining with him on the Canadian frontier, in the winter of 1837-8, and in the winters of 1838, 39 and 40. It was in 1838, that he accompanied Gen. Scott to remove the Cherokee Indians, and en route for the South, via Charlestown for the Cherokee country, took his young wife (to whom he had been married, Nov. 8, 1837), to Washington, and was invited with her, to dine with President Van Buren, about whom were grouped Mr. Clay, Mr. Preston of South Carolina, Gen. Scott, Mr. John Sergeant of Philadelphia, and his two beautiful daughters, and other distinguished persons. After the removal of the Cherokee Indians, he went to St. Louis to join Gen. Gaines. Thence rejoining Gen. Scott, was at Augusta, Me., when that Gen., with Gov. Fairfield, negotiated through the mediation of Sir John Collville, the settlement of the N. E. boundary dispute.

In Nov., 1841, his service as aid de camp to Gen. Scott ended, he having been promoted to be Captain of Artillery, and ordered to Florida, thence to New Orleans, where he remained five months, most of the time in command of the Barracks, below the city. From New Orleans he was ordered to Charleston, S. C., where he remained until May, 1844. Among those on duty at Fort Moultrie, were W. T. Sherman, Geo. H. Thomas, Braxton Bragg, Thomas W. Sherman, and John F. Reynolds, all of the 3d Artillery, and all of whom rose to be Major Generals in the civil war. He left Charleston in May, 1844, to be a member of the West Point board of visitors which was composed solely of Army Officers, and Gen. Scott was President. It was during this year that he was appointed Chief Instructor of Artillery and Cavalry at West Point, and was only relieved Christmas eve, 1848. During this time he supervised the instruction, in those two branches, of McClellan, Stonewall Jackson, Burnside, Hancock, Sturgis, Stoneman and many others who shone in the late war.

In 1848, he was ordered to California, which he reached via the Isthmus, was assigned to the Post of San Francisco, which post he held off and on for nine years. Part of this time was passed in quelling the Indian troubles on the Pacific Coast, in the Puget Sound district, W. T., in the campaign of 1858, second in command to Col. Geo. Wright against the Yackima, Pelouse and Coeur d' Alene Indians, said to be the most effective campaign known, and those Indians never rose afterwards. He was five times engaged in battle with the savages, while in service on the N. W. Pacific coast, either as principal or second in command. Travelling over so large an area of country and amid such dangers, many anecdotes of war and service might be told, did it come within the scope of this work.

Having been promoted to the rank of Major of Artillery in 1858, he was ordered from Fort Van Couver to the East, but, delayed in San Francisco, he did not arrive in New York, en route for Fort Monroe, until Dec., 1859. His old friend Gen. Scott, being in New York, he called on him and was offered the post of military secretary on his staff, in case Col. Robert E.

Lee, to whom the post had been offered, should refuse. As the rank of military secretary was only that of Lieut. Col., Gen. Scott expected Lee to refuse, which he did, and Keyes was appointed. To his room afterward came Robert Lee, with whom he was intimate many years before the war, to ask if Gen. Scott was in, and to tell him he had been approached with an offer of the command of the northern army, which the next day, he refused.

In the Spring of 1861, he was ordered, in concert with M. C. Meigs of the Engineers, now Quartermaster General of the Army, to draw up a plan for the reinforcement of Fort Pickens, Pensacola Harbor. Their plan was approved by the President and Secretary Seward, who took an active interest in it, and they were ordered to carry it into immediate effect, and that stronghold was made secure in a short time, and with such secrecy, that Bragg, who commanded the confederates at Pensacola, learned too late, that the Fort was too strong for him to capture.

It was after the Fort Pickens affair, on his return to Washington, that occurred the estrangement between him and his old friend, Gen. Scott, due perhaps to the fact, that Scott, with Cameron, Sec. of war, had had the question of reinforcing Fort Pickens, under discussion and that the intervention of Mr. Seward in the project was not altogether relished by them.

Gen. Scott, however, sent him an order on the application of the Gov. of N. Y., to assist in the organization of the N. Y. troops for active service. He was complimented by Gov. Morgan, and returned to Washington to receive his commission, as Col. of one of the new regiments of Infantry, the 11th.

Gen. Keyes served during the late rebellion of the Southern States "on the staff of Gov. Morgan of N. Y., assisting in dispatching the state quota of Volunteers to the field from April 21, to June 25, 1861; in recruiting his regiment at Boston, June 25 to July 3, 1861; in the defences of Washington, D. C., July, 1861; in the Manassas campaign of July, 1861, being engaged in the battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861; in the defenses of Washington, D. C., July 22, 1861 to Mar. 10, 1862; in the Virginia Peninsular campaign, commanding the 4th corps (Army of the Potomac), from March to September, 1862, being engaged in the action at Lee's Mills, April 5, 1862; at the siege of Yorktown, April 5 to May 4, 1862 (Maj. Gen. of Volunteers, May 5, 1862); at the skirmish at Bottoms Bridge, May 22, 1862; action near Savage Station, May 24, 1862; battle of Fair Oaks, May 31, 1862; battle of Charles City Cross Roads, June 29, 1862; battle of Malvern Hill, July 1, 1862, and skirmish at Harrison's Landing, July 2, 1862; in command of the 4th Army Corps on the Virginia Peninsula, Aug. 25, 1862 to July, 1863, being engaged in the organization of a raid to the White House, Va., Jan. 7, 1863; in command of an expedition to West Point, Va., May 7, 1863; and in an expedition under Maj. Gen. Dix, toward Richmond, June—July, 1863, being engaged in several skirmishes; and on the Board for Retiring Disabled Officers, July 15, 1863 to May 6, 1864." Resigned May 6, 1864.

Gen. Keyes was brevetted a Brigadier General in the Regular Army, for "gallant and meritorious conduct" in the battle of Fair Oaks. He commanded the 4th Army Corps, and was engaged alone, more than half the time in the battle of the 31st, in which the principal fighting was done the first day, by the 4th Corps. Col. C. C. Suydam, ex-chief of staff to Gen. Keyes, speaks of him as "ever vigilant, ever on the alert, foreseeing and foretelling events as with a second sight, and devoting to the service, that acute intelligence and perception of military affairs, which his thorough training in the old army, had made a part of his very nature."

In the 12th Vol. of the "Rebellion Record," is the report of Gen. McClellan, in which he publishes at length, the letter of Gen. Keyes to Senator Ira Harris of New York, and praises his conduct in saving the trains of the army, and an immense amount of property, when, after the battle of Malvern Hill, he commanded the Rear Guard. See also, Gen. Keyes's report of the battle of Bull Run, Vol. 2, page 15 of "Rebellion Record." Read also in same Vol., page 9, the report of Gen. David Tyler, and mark his high approval of General Keyes. See also, book published by Gen. George M. Cullum, containing a synopsis of the history of all the graduates of the Military Academy, part of which we have quoted. During his time of service in San Francisco, Gen. Keyes became somewhat identified with the place, and after retiring from the army, bought lands and planted a vineyard of forty thousand vines, built one of the largest wine cellars in California, and was elected chief officer of the Vinecultural Society, for the county of Napa. He also took part in the organization of a Saving and Loan Society, and was made Vice President and Director.

In March, 1872, he went to Europe, where he travelled extensively, and where he remained more than five years.

VIII. KEYES, WINFIELD S. (505), eldest s. of Gen. Keyes, b. at the house of his maternal grandfather, in Brooklyn, N. Y., during the life of his mother, resided with his parents at Fort Moultrie, West Point, on the Hudson, and other military posts. Later, he attended the Columbia College Grammar School, at New York, and Burlington College, N. J., under the late Bishop Doane. He studied at Taunton, Mass., and entered Yale in 1856, graduating with honors in 1860. In the Autumn of 1860, he sailed for Europe, in order to pursue the higher branches of science, entered the Royal School of Mines at Freiburg, Saxony, and remained until the beginning of 1863, studying Chemistry, Mineralogy, Geology, Mining, Engineering and Metallurgy. In ten out of eleven elective branches he received the highest mark. The principal mines and reduction works on the Continent, were critically examined by him, and on his return to America, he proceeded at once to California, intent upon the practical exercise of his profession. He visited first, the principal mining districts of California, and studied the mines, mills and processes of Washoe, Nev. For more than two years, he was Superintendant of a large silver mill in Sonora, Mexico. In 1866, he returned to San Francisco, and was chosen Superintendant of the Silver Smelting and Refining Works at Argenta, Montana. While there, he acted as deputy of the U. S. Mineral Commission, and wrote the chapter on the mineral resources of that section, which appears in the report of the Hon. J. Ross Browne. Having left Montana in the Spring of 1869, he was appointed to the charge of the smelting works in White Pine Co., Nev., and in Jan., 1871, was appointed General Manager and Superintendant of the mines and furnaces of the Eureka Consolidated Mining Company at Eureka, Nev., and this enterprise he made a grand technical and financial success. He remained Chief Manager of mines for himself, and various corporations, until the Summer of 1876, when he served on his appointment by the Centennial Commission, as a member of the Board of Judges, for Mining, Metallurgy, &c., at the International Exhibition at Philadelphia. In the Spring of 1878, he was appointed by the President of the U. S., Honorary Commissioner to the Paris Exposition to represent the State of Nevada. Pressure of other duties however, prevented his attendance. At the same time he was offered, and refused, the position of Mining Engineer in Chief, by the Viceroy of Northern China, to explore that country, for its precious and useful ores and minerals. He has acted as scientific mining expert in all the prominent lawsuits in California and Nevada, during the last few years and with great success. Various scientific papers have been contributed by him to the reports of the Mineral Commissioners, and to the Engineering and Mining Journal of New York. He wrote also, the article on the mineral resources of California in Langley's Directory.

VII. KEYES, EDWARD L. (504), 2d s. of Dr. Justus and Betsey, m., May 30, 1843, Lucy, b. Mar. 25, 1818, in Medford, Mass., dau. of Col. Alex. S. Brooks, U. S. A., and granddaughter of Gov. John Brooks of Medford, Mass.

Col. Alex. Scamnel Brooks, father of Mrs. Keyes, was b. in Medford, Oct. 19, 1781, and m. Sarah Turner of Pembroke, Mass. He joined the army in 1808, and continued there, until his death, which occurred Dec. 17, 1836. At the close of the Florida War, he was (then Col. of the 4th Artillery) killed by the bursting of the boiler of the steamer, Dolphin. His body was washed ashore at St. Johns, Florida, and taken to Medford, where it was buried with military honors. He left two children, Lucy, m. to E. L. Keyes, and John, a midshipman, who d. 1843. Edward L. Keyes "had only the education which may be acquired at a common school with one or two terms at an Academy. His keen taste for literature, and his youthful ambition led him to employ his leisure time in the acquisition of knowledge, and he distinguished himself in the Lyceums and was regarded as a brilliant youth. He went to Boston as a clerk in a wholesale store, and availed himself of the facilities for acquiring knowledge, so abundantly afforded by that city. While there, he wrote articles for the daily papers, the excitement and success of which, made merchandizing distasteful. He took a leading part in the formation of the free soil party of which he was an ardent and untiring advocate. In 1844, he bought the printing establishment of the Dedham Gazette."

Henry O. Hildreth, the successor of E. L. Keyes, as editor of that paper, writes of him thus, at the time of his death.

"Hon. Edward L. Keyes, a resident of this town (Dedham), for several years, during most of which he was editor of this paper, died from softening of the brain, in the hospital at Taunton, June 6, 1859, at the age of 47. He represented Dedham for two years in the House of Representatives and in 1851 and 1852 represented the County of Norfolk, in the State Senate. In 1848, he was a member of the Executive Council, and in 1853, represented the town of Abington in the Constitutional Convention. He was also one of the Commissioners for the erection of the State Alms Houses. For several years, Edward L. Keyes was one of the foremost young men of the State, exercising a degree of influence seldom attained even by men of riper years and larger experience. He wielded a vigorous and earnest pen and as a speaker, was possessed of remarkable power, which, combined with graceful manners, commanding presence and a clear, musical and deep toned voice, made him one of the most brilliant and effective political speakers in the country. He was a perfect master of invective, and no person who had listened to him, could ever forget the blistering, withering power with which he invested human speech, or the burning words with which he pleaded the cause of suffering humanity, and called down the execration of men, and the vengeance of Heaven upon the oppressor.

He dared to speak bold, brave words for human rights, at a time when interest, position and reputation were endangered thereby, for which, his name will long be held in grateful remembrance.

The funeral services took place at the Indiana Place Chapel, and were attended by many friends and former associates of the deceased, among whom were Henry Wilson, John A. Andrew, Wendell Phillips, Edmund Quincey and others. The remains were interred in the tomb of Gov. John Brooks in Medford, Mass."

Simeon Keyes, perhaps the father of these children, was published to Abigail Ward of Sutton, Nov., 1780.

III. KEYES, CAPT. SOLOMON (15), third of the name, and fourth child of Solomon and Mary, was noted for his personal bravery. He was in Capt. Lovewell's company on its famous excursion to Pequawket, now Fryeburg, Me., and was one of the very few survivors of the fight. The story was thus given, more than forty years ago, in the North American Rev. "It was on the 18th of April, 1725, that Capt. John Lovewell of Dunstable, Mass., with thirty-four men, fought a famous Indian chief, named Paugus, at the head of about eighty savages, near the shores of a pond in Pequawket, Me. Lovewell's men were determined to conquer or die. They fought till Lovewell and Paugus were killed, and all Lovewell's men but nine (or as some say, two) were either killed or dangerously wounded. The savages having lost, as was supposed, sixty of their number, and being convinced of the fierce and determined resolution of their foes, at length retreated and left them masters of the ground."

"Solomon Keys received three bullet wounds, and was apparently dying. To save his dead body from being mangled by the savages, he rolled himself down the beach to a canoe, which chanced to be there. Almost senseless, he succeeded in creeping into it. A gentle breeze blew the canoe across the pond, diagonally, and landed it but a short distance from the stockade fort, into which he contrived to creep."—Abbott's History of Me.

"Lovewell's pond," a beautiful sheet of water, lies a short distance from the village of Fryeburg, and is often visited with interest, as being the scene of a bloody combat, and of the overthrow of a powerful Indian tribe.

Capt. Solomon Keyes, in some accounts of this fight, has been accorded to Billerica, as was also the birth of his father, the son of Solomon and Frances. But no record of the birth of either father or son has been found in that place, and both are recorded in Chelmsford, where the second Solomon lived, and where Capt. Solomon probably passed his early life. Later he removed to Western (now Warren), Mass., then a part of Brookfield, and lived in a house built on an eminence near the village. This house may have been built by the second Solomon, father of Capt. Solomon of the Pequawket affair, who probably moved from the vicinity of Chelmsford, as we find no record there of his death. Capt. Solomon lived thirty years after the fight at Pequawket, and was killed at Lake George, Sept. 8, 1755, in the French and Indian War.

IV. KEYES, DANFORH (629), 7th child of Capt. Solomon, was b. at the old homestead built by his father in Western (now Warren), Mass., in 1740. He was the first child b. in the house, and was carried to Brookfield (to which that part of Western formerly belonged) to be christened in the old meeting-house on the hill, which was burned by the Indians the next year.

Although only sixteen years old at the time, he was in the same battle in which his father was killed at Lake George, but came out unharmed. After the affair at Lake George, he still continued in the French war service, and was in the disastrous assault of Gen. Abercrombie upon the French lines at Ticonderoga, 1758. Also, he was with Gen. Amherst in the army raised for the conquest of Canada, took part in the final capture of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, 1759, and was with Amherst engaged in the capture of Isle aux Noix, St. Johns and Montreal. With part of his regiment he came across the State of Vermont from St. Albans in the winter, and most of the men were barefooted before arriving at Charleston, No. 4.

"The town of Hardwick, Cal. Co., Vt., was granted to Danforth Keyes and his associates, Nov. 7, 1780, and chartered Aug. 19, 1781."

At the outbreak of the American Revolution, he was among the first to take the field, and was in the battle of Lexington and Bunker Hill, at Providence with Gen. Sullivan and subsequently served throughout the war, being at home but twice during that time.

'He was a personal friend of Washington, who visited him after the war, and his descendants still preserve many letters with the signature of the great chief appended."

"The same house is now standing in Warren, Mass., where Col. Danforth Keyes, grandfather of Danforth Keyes, now living in Warren, was notified more than one hundred years ago of the battle of Lexington, and that war had actually begun, and was ordered to start with his regiment at once for the scene of action. The regiment was collected on the common at Brookfield, and in twenty-four hours was ready to march. The same old well is now in use on the premises from which Gen. Washington and some of his army drank on their march from Boston to New York, and the old Oak tree in whose shade the soldiers rested, still stands erect and waves its branches in defiance of the ravages of time."

Daniel, John and Solomon Keyes, probably sons of Zebediah, were in "Captain Ford's company" in the Battle of Bunker Hill, where the eldest was sergeant and all were wounded.

Here ends the record of the descendants of Solomon Keyes, the son of Solomon of Chelmsford.

II. KEYES, JOSEPH (8), 2d s. of the first Solomon, b. in Chelmsford, Mass., May 24, 1667, m., 1690, Joanna Cleaveland. He is mentioned in Chelmsford records as one of the town "Commity" until 1720, perhaps later. His descendants seem to have remained generally in, or in the vicinity of Chelmsford and Westford. While the descendants of the second Solomon have emigrated to New Hampshire, Vermont, Conn., and later to New York and the far West, so that their names are not found on book or gravestone, the Westford town books show pretty full lists of Joseph's descendants for three or four generations. The names of Joseph and Jonathan Keyes are to be seen in numbers on ancient gravestones, in the old graveyard, while a modern tomb bears the names of Keyes and Fletcher, with which family this branch of Keyes have often intermarried.

He married 2d, Feb. 18, 1845, Mrs. Mary Foster, who died July 26, 1848. Joel Keyes d. Dec. 15, 1858, in Dunstable, Mass.

"Mr. Keyes was a man of commanding personal presence. He was six feet in height, and well proportioned, weighing two hundred pounds or upwards for many years before his death. He had a strong, well rounded character, constituting him one of those men on whom others felt they could rely. In his bearing, he was hearty and genial to all; but along with these qualities there was an unassuming dignity that impressed even strangers. He possessed clear judgment, and marked intelligence, reading books of a far higher grade than those usually read in his day by men upon the farm. He was a man of the utmost sincerity. Said an old acquaintance: "I always liked to hear him talk, he seemed so sincere." If he uttered words of praise it was because he felt they were deserved. If his lips spoke censure, it was because his judgment told him that it was needed. He would reprove a man who had done wrong, with great plainness, but with that transparent sincerity and kindness that the one reprov'd respected him the more. He lived a life of spotless integrity. To abide in justice and righteousness, was natural to him, for these elements lay at the foundation of his character. A vein of quiet but effective humor sprung from his heart, and distilled a peculiar charm over his conversation. There was in him a depth of affection that drew his children and friends closely to him. To his grandchildren he showed a playful love, which, according to their natures, they answered with love and reverence. They grew up proud of their grandfather, and to them, as to his children, his memory is a constant benediction.

* The farm to which he moved in Dunstable was a good one, but it was greatly improved under his cultivation, and that of his son. Few rural homes are more attractive in their situation and surroundings than the one where he abode. The buildings stood upon a kind of shelf upon the side of a sloping hill. Above them, beyond the green mowing, is the woodland, crowning the summit of the hill and forming a beautiful background to the scene. Before them, a wide, grassy lawn slopes downward to the road. Around them are several large elms that have stood as friendly sentinels for many years. Under these elms the aged owner would often sit of a summer day reading his favorite newspaper, or looking out upon the peaceful fields before him. Here also in thought, he often looked out upon the eternal scenes that lay around, hid from his mortal eyes. His memory dwelt lovingly upon the many friends who had gone before him; and when the end came he went trustfully home to them, and to the unseen glory."

CHILDREN.

832. Darwin Perry, b. Dec. 5, 1837, in Dunstable, Mass.

833. Joseph Willard, b. Sept. 30, 1839, in Dunstable.

Joel cultivated for a time his father's farm in Dunstable. It afterward became his own, and several years before his death, he transferred it to his eldest son Darwin. Like his father, Joel was a man of strict integrity, thorough sincerity and kindness of heart. In this age of railroads it is a little remarkable that he never journeyed over fifty miles from the place where he was born.

VIII. KEYES, DARWIN P. (832), m., April 24, 1867, Lizzie Cheney of Hollis, N. H. They have one dau., 834. Edna L., b. Oct. 15, 1869.

Mr. Keyes cultivated for some years the farm which was owned by his father and grandfather and is still the proprietor, though he has lived several years near the center of Groton, Mass. He received a good Academic education, and has proved himself an energetic farmer and a successful teacher of schools.

VIII. KEYES, JOSEPH W. (833), m. 1st, May 15, 1866, at Minneapolis, Minn., Anna M. Cooper of that city. They had one child, now living.

835. Bertha A., b. April 18, 1868, at Arlington, Mass.

DAUGHTER.

836. Mary W., b. May 23, 1876, at Auburn, N. Y. Just a century from the year of her great-grand-father's birth.

"Mr. Keyes is a clergyman (Univ.). He graduated from the normal school in Westfield, Mass., July, 1859, and after teaching and preaching a little, entered the Theological Department of the St. Lawrence University at Canton, N. Y., where he graduated in 1864. Immediately after, he went to the North West, and took charge of a newly organized parish in Minneapolis, Minn. Here he remained nearly two years, then with health seriously impaired, returned to the seaboard. When he was ordained over the society, its members worshipped in a hall in the third story of an unpainted building. At leaving, they had a fine church edifice nearly completed. Coming East, he was pastor of a church in Arlington, Mass., and later in Webster, Mass. From Webster he accepted a call to Auburn, N. Y. During this settlement, by his persistent efforts, the church edifice in which he ministered, was rebuilt, making it one of the most beautiful, as it is one of the most spacious in the Denomination. At Auburn, his health became greatly imperilled, in part from overwork, which led him to resign, and take up his residence in Shirly Village, Mass., where he still ministers to the Universalist church of that pleasant town."

VI. KEYES, JONAS (819), s. of Joseph and Ruth, is probably the Jonas who m. Sally Read in Chelmsford, Mass., in 1808. He lived in Tyngsboro, Mass., many years, and d. there. He had eight

840. Joseph Boyden, b. May 13, 1829, d. May 6, 1871.

841. George, b. Mar. 12, 1832.

John Keyes was b. in Westford, Middlesex Co., Mass., attended the Academy in that town, graduated at Dartmouth College, in 1809, read law with John Abbott of Westford and John Leighton Tuttle of Concord, Mass. and began its practice in Concord, in 1812. Possessed of rare ability, strong sense, keen faculties and an ardent temperament, he soon became prominent both in his profession and in politics. He rose steadily in the confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens, filled with honor many important positions in their gift and became one of the leading men of his time in the State. With a retentive memory, a fearless disposition, an earnest eloquence and a strong personality, he made a deep impression on all with whom he was brought in contact. Few men in the community had more power in a deliberative assembly or carried more conviction to hearers or more weight to the cause espoused. For thirty years he was actively engaged in useful work, widely known, truly respected, thoroughly trusted, a power in his town, county and state. His well-trained mind, stored with the principles of both legal and political science, grew rather by the experience of affairs, than by close study, for which his occupations left him little time. Independent in views, manly in tone, frank in purpose, he bore himself with dignity and resolution in every station, and left a memory to be honored and an example to be imitated by all of his name.

In person above medium height, erect, light figure, ruddy complexion, dark hair, roman nose and broad, high forehead, graceful manner and powerful voice, he attracted attention and won confidence by his demeanor. In social and domestic life he was warm hearted and impulsive, strongly attached to his home and friends, hospitable and courteous to his numerous guests. His health, never robust, served with care and prudence for all his duties without interruption till a severe attack of colic suddenly ended his life Aug. 29, 1844, in his fifty-eighth year. His life was almost uniformly prosperous and he died before old age had brought its burdens. He left a handsome estate honestly earned by his own labors, and accumulated after a prudent but liberal expenditure through life. He was Postmaster from 1813 to 1837, County Treasurer for the same term, by twenty-four successive annual elections, Member of the Constitutional Convention, 1820, Representative in 1821 and 22, Senator from 1823 to 1829, and again Representative in 1832 and 1833, and Speaker, pro tem, a portion of the Session, candidate for Congress in 1824, and defeated in a close contest by Edward Everett. He never held town office, but served on most of the important committees, frequently was Moderator at town meetings and presided at the Bi-Centennial celebration in 1835, and on other public occasions. He was Master of the Masonic Lodge in Concord and an officer of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. A director from the beginning in the Concord Bank, Savings Institution and Middlesex Insurance Co., and President of the last at the time of his death.

IV. KEYES, DANIEL (932), youngest s. of Moses, Jr., m., Sept. 17, 1754, in Westford, Mass., Abigail, b. 1738, g. dau. of Robert Proctor, who m., 1645, Jane Hildreth of Concord, Mass., where he then lived, and moved to Chelmsford in 1654, where he died in the year 1797. Daniel and Abigail were married by "Rev. Ebenezer Bridge, Pastor," and the marriage recorded in Chelmsford and Westford.

The birth of the two oldest children is recorded in both Chelmsford and Westford, and the birth of the third in Townsend, Mass., after which he settled and remained many years in the town of Washington, N. H. July 25, 1777 he sold one hundred acres of land in Westmoreland, N. H., and just one hundred years ago, April 20, 1778, bought a tract of land in Putney, Vt., thus described in the records of deeds in Putney: "Know all men by these presents, that I, Jonas More of Putney, in the county of Cumberland, in the state of New York, in consideration of the sum of 223 pounds, lawful money of said state, paid to me by Daniel Keyes," &c. This deed conveyed to Daniel, one hundred acres of land "drawn on the right of John White of Charlestown, in the state of Massachusetts Bay, lots numbered 23 and 26, each fifty acre lots, one bounded on the great river," &c., dated April 20, 1778. Daniel did not move his family to Vermont, for some years after this purchase. He is represented as a tall man of fair complexion, while Abigail was small, and the tradition of her brilliant eyes still lingers among her descendants. Daniel had great energy and determination of character, held some town offices, and being a fine penman, was often employed to draw up contracts and deeds for his neighbors and townsmen.

V. KEYES, ISRAEL (944), eldest s. of Daniel, m., in Washington, N. H., Abigail, b. 1758, dau. of David Lowell, then of Washington, and sister of Dr. Solomon Lowell of Westminster West. He came to Putney with his father, and built, about the year 1802, the two story dwelling, in which some of his descendants lived for four generations. It is beautifully situated, on the brow of a hill, from which sweeps away a wide extent of country, across the Connecticut, and on, to the New Hampshire hills. North of the house, is a rocky elevation, from whose summit may be seen in addition to the above, the Green Mountain Range, stretching from north to south on the west, the Monadnock on the south-east, the Ascutney on the north, and far in the north-east, the shining tops of the White Mountains. There is a lily pond on the domain which was also a skating pond for the "Keyes boys" in winter.

Israel was Deacon in the Cong. church, was an energetic, capable business man, making, even at that early day, a number of journeys, each year, to Boston in the way of business. He was also Captain of a military company, but was generally known as Deacon Keyes. He d. at the homestead, after a short illness, in the Spring of 1810. Abigail, his wife, d. VII. KEYES, LUCIUS M. (982), m., May 31, 1837, Loretta Holmes in Gouverneur, N. Y. Loretta was b. June 11, 1815. They moved to Illinois soon after their marriage, and lived in Princeton and Dover. About 1848 or 9, they moved to a place on the Prairie, which in time became a farm, not far from Dover, in Berlin township. Like the first houses of all the Prairie farmers, their's was a small one story building, without partition, and the stable was built by setting forked posts in the ground and covering with poles and slough grass, and boarding the sides. There was about a quarter section in the homestead, or one hundred and sixty acres. Lucius and wife were members of the church, which they attended in Dover. The chances for education at that time, were small where Loretta had lived, and so anxious was she to learn, that while living on the Prairie, she studied at home and recited to some teacher in the vicinity. A prairie fire at one time threatened the family, and the descendants relate that after it had spent itself, they went out to view the devastations, and found that the element which had threatened their home and destroyed the grass and the Prairie flowers, had revealed to them instead, innumerable eggs of the Prairie hen, which they prepared for the table, and Prairie rattlesnakes, which were almost as great enemies as the fire. Lucius was treasurer of the "Princeton Precinct Peace Society," in 1848. In 1853, having passed through the first hard years of settling in a new country, he contemplated the building of a new and civilized dwelling and went to the town of Peru, on the Illinois river, to obtain lumber, where he was exposed to the cholera, of which he died, in Princeton, Sept. 2, 1853. Loretta probably accompanied him to Peru, and took the same disease, as she died of cholera in Berlin, Aug. 28, 1853.

VIII. KEYES, ISAAC HOLMES (991), left an orphan at six years, was passed around among his relatives in the vicinity of Princeton, until he was adopted by a gentleman who gave him a good education, and at twenty-one, he went out into the world to seek his fortune. He set up farming in Iowa, but failed for want of experience, tried clerking, and after many wanderings, arrived in San Francisco. Finding nothing to do there, he took a steamer for Portland, Oregon, from thence went to Salem, where, about two miles in the country, he has made a clearing "in the timber," and with neighbors at half mile distances, is making himself a home.

VII. KEYES, MARSHALL M. (983), moved with his father's family to Lee Co., Ill., where he m., Nov. 24, 1840, Barbara McDonnell. In 1850, he emigrated to California, and is pleasantly situated on a fine farm, near Calistoga, Napa Co.

VI. KEYES, ASA (955), 5th child of Dea. Israel, fitted for college at Chesterfield Academy, graduated at Dartmouth, in 1810, and afterward taught the Academy at Chesterfield for two years. For two years he read law with Judge White in Putney, and one year in Boston, in the office of Ebenezer Rockwood. He was admitted to the Windham County Bar, at the December term, 1814, and began practice in Putney, as partner of Judge White. He was Postmaster many years in Putney, Royal Arch Mason and Master of the Golden Rule Lodge there, removing to Brattleboro in the Autumn of 1833, where he has since remained. He represented Putney in the Vt. Legislature in 1826 and 7, and Brattleboro in 1835, was in the State Senate in 1855 and 1856, being both years on the judiciary committee. He was Judge of Probate in the Westminster District, also Register of Probate some years in that District, and after giving up the general practice of law, was Register of Probate in the District of Marlboro, for fifteen years, resigning in the Autumn of 1878. For nearly thirty-five years he was one of the Trustees of the Vermont Asylum, and a Trustee of the Vermont Savings Bank, from the commencement to the present. Jan. 7, 1815, Mr. Keyes married Sarah, dau. of Asa and Sally (Keep) Britton of Chesterfield, N. H. Of the father of Mrs. Keyes, the following anecdote is too good to lose. He was a tall, heavy man, weighing probably two hundred, had accumulated a large property, had held the offices of Sheriff, Justice of the Peace, Selectman and all the other offices which give respectability and importance in a country town, insomuch that it excited the animosity of some of his ambitious but less fortunate neighbors. Now with energy, intelligence and shrewdness, he had a credulousness, which led him often to misplace his confidence, and at two separate times, to take as partners, young, inexperienced and untried men, who each decamped, taking with him much spoil. On one of these occasions, when the village was ringing with the news of the gutted store and money box, a party of gamins, instigated by the enemy, set the church bell also ringing, and above the noise and confusion of the crowd, which the sound of the bell at that unusual hour, had collected, was heard the cry, ever louder and louder, "Great Britton has fallen, Great Britton has fallen."

VII. KEYES GEORGE B. (1006), was admitted to the Windham County Bar, about 1845, m. Jan. 4, 1847, in Brattleboro, Julia M. Thomas, b. in Brattleboro, Feb. 21, 1826, and in the winter of 1849, sailed from Boston, in the ship Pharsalia, for a voyage around cape Horn, arriving in San Francisco late the following summer. Thence he proceeded up the Tuolumne with a prospecting party, and passed his first years of California life in Jacksonville; moved to Sonora in 1864, and after some years, to Wilmington, in Southern California. The following, is from an article in the Union (Sonora) Democrat, written after his death.

"Judge Keyes was one of the earliest settlers in Tuolumne, having arrived in the county in 1849. He mined on the Tuolumne river during the famous era, known as the "fall of '49, and the spring of '50," forsaking the sluice box and wingdam during '51 or '52, for the purpose of conducting a hotel in Jacksonville. While living in the latter place, he was elected County Assessor, and filled the office with thorough ability, and during the war was elected County Judge, serving the people faithfully, ably and conscientiously. About 1870, he left Tuolumne and made his home in the Orange groves of Los Angeles, where he found innumerable friends to smooth the pathway to the grave. As a man, Judge Keyes was respected by his acquaintances and loved by his friends; a type of the early Californian, and an outgrowth of the better elements of that early civilization on this coast, upon which our present peculiarly constituted society rests. He was quiet in his demeanor, and whole-souled in his friendships, drawing all that was noble or manly in humanity towards him, as he came in contact with it. Another Argonaut has 'gone home,' may his search for the golden fleece on the unknown shores of the El Dorado of eternity, be crowned with the success he deserves." "

V. KEYES, ABEL (950), youngest s. of Daniel, while prospecting for a place in which to locate, and make a home, came to Northfield, Vt., in 1790, and decided to remain there on account of its water privileges. He m., 1793, in Putney, Mrs. Esther Nichols, sister of Capt. Benjamin Smith of that place, and in 1796, moved his family to Northfield. He was Selectman, Lister and Justice of the Peace there, also represented the town in the Legislature two years. The history of Northfield says, "Capt. Keyes was in many respects a most remarkable man. Having robust health, ceaseless activity and untiring energy, he could do every thing but persevere and wait. He had a restless temperament which kept him ever on the move, and with strong religious convictions, enterprise and activity, his success in life was limited only by his habit of leaving to others, the pleasant task of reaping the reward of his labors." In 1839, he moved to Illinois, and was Post Master in Lake Zurich in that State, one year, then moved to Lake Mills, Wis., where he d., Sept. 26, 1843, according to his grandson, Elisha W. Keyes, aged 70. The history of Northfield makes his death occur 1848. Mrs. Esther Keyes d. in Northfield in 1831.

Capt. Joseph Keyes, d. at Manasha, Wis., Sept. 17, 1874.

Mrs. Olive Keyes d. at Menasha, Wis., Feb. 18, 1878.

We extract the following from an article which appeared in the Madison, Wis., Journal, soon after the death of Capt. Joseph Keyes.

"In the Spring of 1836, Mr. Keyes, with a powerful constitution and an indomitable energy, struck out to seek his fortune in a new country, and landed at Milwaukee in June of that year. Wisconsin was then an inviting field for men of his type. It needed intelligent, enterprising, hard working men, to develop its immense resources. Mr. Keyes being one of that class, met a cordial welcome from the few bold spirits who had preceeded him, and found an ample scope of country in which to operate. During the Autumn of 1836, he spent some time at Menomonee, north of Green Bay. At this place, he dressed the lumber for a house, which he brought to Milwaukee on a vessel in December, and erected into a dwelling in that city, which still stands as a memento of his first operations in the territory.

The family of Mr. Keyes followed him to the West in 1837, arriving in Milwaukee in June of that year. In the fall of 1837, with his family, he removed to Lake Mills, being the first white settler of that town. He proceeded at once to the erection of a grist mill and a saw mill, that proved of vast advantage to the settlement of a new country; and very soon laid out the village of Lake Mills, being its original founder. Here, in accordance with his public spirit and liberality, he erected the first school house in the town, and employed the first teacher, being a Miss Catlin of Cottage Grove, in this county, all with his individual means. Such an act, of itself is a proud monument to his name and fame.

A short time after this, Mr. Keyes erected a saw mill at a point known as Keyesville, a short distance north of Cambridge; and not satisfied with this, with his sons Simon and Abel, he put up a superior grist and saw mill at Cambridge in this county, in 1847-8.

This was the starting point of that village. In 1850, he removed to Menasha, erected one of the first saw mills there and afterward lived for a time in this city (Madison.)

Some fifteen years ago, Mr. Keyes removed from this city to Menasha, since which time, with the exception of a brief period, he was Register of the Land Office, he has lived in quiet retirement, such as was well suited to the closing years of one whose energy had been so actively exercised in developing the resources of the State. Few men have done more zealous work in this direction; and it was a source of great enjoyment to him to have lived to witness the thinly populated territory he first entered, develop into one of the most prosperous States in the Union, with its population of 1,200,000.

We have thus followed Mr. Keyes through the years of his active life, and a mere reference to his numerous works, prove that he was no common man. Being open-handed, generous to a fault, always ready to aid with his means every good cause, he executed an immense amount of labor, and made several fortunes; but in the end, had saved but little of the results of his labors to himself. The great benefits of his work had been used for the good of others. But he had the consolation of knowing that he had done the new State of his adoption, a good service, and had been the pioneer in many valuable improvements."

Col. E. W. Keyes left Northfield with his father's family in 1837, and removed with them to Wisconsin. "In early life he exhibited those traits of character which have since made him a man of marked influence in the Badger State.

At school he was first in his classes, in sports and games; following in the wake of his father and grandfather, he led the van." Entering upon the study of law while quite young, he was admitted to the Bar in Madison, at the age of twenty-three, and soon acquired an extensive and lucrative practice; present firm, Keyes and Chynoweth, Madison, Wis. In 1861 he was appointed Postmaster of Madison, which office he has held to the present time. He was Mayor of Madison in 1865 and 1866, "was States Attorney for Dane Co., two years, is now one of the Regents of the State University at Madison, and was Chairman of the State Central Committee until President Hayes' Order No. 1, forbade officers in the civil service of the government holding such an office as that of chairman of a party committee," when he resigned. Says a Wisconsin paper: "There are very few persons in Wisconsin who have not heard of Hon. E. W. Keyes, popularly known as "Boss Keyes," praised by the Republicans, and abused by the Democrats, because of his untiring energy, displayed as chairman of the "State Central Committee." He is now in the prime of life, and vigor of manhood, has great force of character; for many years has been the acknowledged head of the Republican party, and has shown himself a competent, skillful and successful leader, having many times with unfaltering step, with unerring Judgment, and with matchless generalship led the party to victory, and has well earned the title, the "Bismark of western politics." He is spoken of as an able lawyer and an entertaining, forcible and convincing speaker. He was candidate for Congress in 1878, defeated by Matt H. Carpenter.

Here ends the record of Moses Keyes, son of Solomon of Chelmsford, Mass.

II. KEYES, JOHN (11), youngest s. of Solomon and Frances, was b. in Chelmsford, Mass., his birth there recorded. We first hear of him in Marlboro, Mass., where is recorded the birth of his children. He probably moved to Shrewsbury about 1720, and was one of the founders of the church there.

"He m. Mch. 11, 1696, Mary, dau. of Gersham and Hannah (Johnson) Eames. Gersham Eames d. in Watertown, Mass., Nov. 25, 1676, and Mary was b. four months after her father's death. Her mother subsequently m. a Ward, and became the mother of Col. Nahum Ward. In Aug. 1723, a carpenter by the name of Ebenezer Bragg, was building a house for John, then Capt. John Keyes, in Shrewsbury. On the night of the 7th, the house being nearly finished, was burned, as also the old one near it in which Major John was then residing. Six persons were sleeping in the new house. Three sons of Capt. Keyes, and two of Bragg's apprentices were burned, and Bragg saved himself by jumping from the window. John, usually known as the famous Major John Keyes, lived with his wife 72 years. Their son-in-law, Daniel Rand, m. Martha Bruce for his 2nd wife, was m. by Major John who had then passed his 85th year, and afterward lived with his father-in-law. His farm was subsequently known as the Rand farm, and was purchased by Col. Joseph Henshaw of Rand or his heirs. Maj. John d. Mch. 31, 1768. Mary, relict of Maj. John d. April 16, 1772, aged 95 years and one month."

III. KEYES, GERSHAM (1454), eldest s. of Maj. John, and the only one of his sons who survived the fire, m. 1718, Sarah—— and was living in Shrewsbury, on house lot No. 15, in 1729. His wife joined the church there 1727. After the birth of his children, says the record, "Gersham removed to Boston and became a wealthy merchant." Gersham afterward removed to Virginia and established a ferry, still called Keyes Ferry, on the Shenandoah river, near Charlestown, Jeff. Co. The ferry was then half a mile below its present site, opposite Sheler's Spring, now Keyes Switch. There are no data to fix the time of Gersham's removal to Virginia, but in 1755, when Braddock with his force crossed the Shenandoah, he was living there, and from him supplies were bought for Braddock's army. The descendants still preserve a letter, relative to the survey of the 'Keyes Ferry tract,' which we here insert, as showing the extent of that tract, and as every item relating to the father of his country must be interesting.

MR KEYES.

Your letter of the 18th Feb'y was delivered to me at our last court, by Mr Ramsay. In regard to the Warrant which you enquire after, I can only repeat what I have often done before that it must have been returned with the others to the Proprietor's office, if I ever had such a one, but since it is not to be found there, I shall at your request declare all I remember concerning it, which is this, that there was a Warrant directed to me for surveying you (I think) four hundred acres of Land, either at or about your Ferry, which then stood lower down the river; but who it was to join on, or what was the reason of not executing it I cannot absolutely recollect; this I perfectly well know, that I did make you a survey at some place near to where your Ferry then stood, but I think it was in consequence of another Warrant, and that I have had such a Warr't as you ask after in my Possession and moreover that it was not executed owing to some dispute between Col. Fairfax and yourself.

I am Sir

Yr. Hble Servt.

VII. KEYES, WADE (1522), was a student at the University of Virginia, in the sessions of 1837—8. He left the senior classes during the session of 1838—9 on account of ill health and deaths in the family. He studied law with William Richardson, Esq., subsequently joining a law class taught by Hon. Daniel Coleman, and finally graduated in the law department of Transylvania University, at Lexington, Ken. In 1842, he sailed from N. O. to Genoa. traveled on the continent, and in England and Ireland, returning in the Autumn of 1843; removed to Florida in 1844, and practiced law in Marianna, Jackson Co., in that state. While residing there he published two legal volumes which attracted much attention. In 1851, he returned to Alabama and commenced the practice of law in Montgomery, then the capitol of the state. He was elected Chancellor of the southern Chancery Division of the state, 1853, and held the office six years. Says a southern paper: "He made a splendid reputation as a Chancellor, and established himself among the foremost chancery lawyers of the day." During his chancellorship, he organized a law class at Montgomery, and the school was subsequently organized as the Montgomery law school, and made the law department of the University at Tuscaloosa. In 1861, while 1st Lieutenant of a volunteer company, in a fort in Mobile Bay, he was appointed Assistant Att'y. Gen. of the Conf. Gov't, and during the existence of that Gov't. continued in the Department of Justice, either as assistant or acting Attorney General. After the war he returned to Ala. to his profession. When the Act was passed for codifying the laws of Alabama, he was appointed by Gov. Houston one of the commissioners, the late Judge F. M. Wood being his associate. May 16, 1848, he m. VII. KEYES, JOHN WASHINGTON (1524), "entered La Grange College, Ala. Jan. 1842, whence he was suspended 1843, for fighting. Returning home he studied medicine, attended medical lectures in Louisville, Ken., and commenced the practice of medicine in partnership with Dr. Welch, in Somerville, Alabama." On the 4th of Nov. 1846, he m. Julia L., eldest dau. of Prof. Nicholas Marcellus, and Caroline Lee Hentz, in Tuskegee, Ala. They have had 15 children, whose names we have not received. In 1849, he studied in Cincinnati and 1850 took the degree of Dr. of Dental Surgery, from the Ohio Dental College, and the degree of Dr. of Medicine, from the Medical College of Ohio. Dr. Keyes was for a time in Florida, and in 1857, removed to Montgomery, Ala., devoting himself to the practice of Dentistry, to the literature of which profession he was an occasional contributor.

He was in the Conf. army at Mobile, in Co. A., 1st Battalion of Hilliard's Legion, and as surgeon of 17th Ala. Reg. He also acted as surgeon in St. Mary's Hospital in Montgomery, and elsewhere. The citizens of Montgomery presented him with a fine horse as a mark of esteem. After the war he went to Brazil, returned, and in 1873 bought lands in Calhoun Co., Florida, and engaged in the culture of the orange. Dr. Keyes is six feet tall, weight 180, with great physical strength, as may be seen from the fact of his having captured a shark eight feet in length without the aid of men or weapons.

VII. KEYES, JANE C. (1525), m. John D. Rather, Jan 26, 1843. He is a lawyer, has been Circuit Judge, Speaker of the House of Representatives, President of the Senate of the General Assembly of Alabama, and member of the Constitutional Convention of 1875. Has also been President of the Memphis and Charleston R. R. Company. Res. Tuscumbia, Colbert Co. Ala. Mrs. Jane C. Rather d. 1853.

VII. KEYES, GEORGE P. (1526), graduated at La Grange College, Ala., at the age of 18, receiving the degree of A. B. Edited the Athens Alabama Herald, afterwards removing to Montgomery, where for twelve consecutive years, he was Register and Master in the Chancery Court. He was in the southern army during the late war, with Col. Bibb's company at Fort Morgan as its first Sergeant, and in the Alabama Legion during the celebrated campaign into Kentucky. After having been discharged on account of ill health, he commanded a battalion of Home Guards. He is now connected with the editorial department of the Montgomery Daily Advertiser, and occasionally indulges in writing verses, some of which have been popular among his friends. He m. 1859, Fannie L. Gayle, who d. May 1, 1876, leaving a dau. about ten years of age.

VI. KEYES, WASHINGTON (1485), s. of Capt. John, and twin brother of George, m. Elizabeth Williamson of Columbia, Maury Co. Tenn. Her mother was a Hunter, of North Carolina, nearly related to the Hintons of Raleigh. Col. Harney Walker, A. O. P. Nicholson, and Dr. A. Voorhies of Columbia, were her cousins. Col. Washington Keyes was a merchant, was very popular during his life and lamented at his death, which occurred Feb. 13, 1838.

"Died, near Quincy, Florida, on Tuesday the 13th of Feb. last, Col. Washington Keyes, late cashier of the branch of the Bank of the State of Ala., at Decatur, of Pulmonary affection, with which he had been affected several years. He was b. in Washington Co. Va., Nov. 18, 1792, and at an early age removed thence to East Tenn., where he res. until 1818, or '19. He thence removed to Limestone Co. Ala., where he lived until his residence in this place (Decatur), whence he went to Florida for the benefit of his health. In the death of Mr. Keyes this community mourns the loss of one of its most worthy citizens, and Alabama one of her ablest and most efficient financiers. Mild and unassuming in his manners, and pleasant in his address, he possessed the friendship and esteem of all who knew him." Col. W. Keyes, also his sons William and Frank were Masons.

CHILDREN.

VII. KEYES, WILLIAM Mc. C. (1531), engaged at 19 in the study of the law, passed his legal examination, and removed to Houston, Chickasaw Co. Miss., intending to settle there. But on the breaking out of the Mexican war, he was chosen leader of a company, and commanded the post at Tampico, at which place and elsewhere in that war, he distinguished himself by his bravery. On one occasion he was presented by Gen. Taylor to a large Assembly of the citizens of N. O., and complimented by him in the highest terms. At the close of the war he devoted himself to his plantation, at the same time studying many hours each day, and acquiring several of the modern languages. "But he brought home with him, the seeds of that insidious disease which ultimately caused his death." He d. one year after his return, at the age of 25, unm.

VII. KEYES, ALBERT G. (1534), was educated at the Univ. of Miss. at Oxford. In the late yar, he belonged to the 28th Miss. Reg. of Cavalry, was wounded in the charge through Franklin, Tenn., under Van Dorn, was taken to the hospital in Nashville, Tenn., and d. there May 23, 1863. He left a dau. whose death occurred soon after his own.

Texas, where she now resides.

"Claxton, Remsen and Haffelfinger of Philadelphia, have published a book in which will be found the name of Mrs. Bettie Keyes Hunter, among the living Female Writers of the South." Her poem, "Death in Prison," written upon the death of her brother in hospital prison, was extensively copied by the press, and others have been republished in the London Times. She has now a vol. of poems nearly ready for the press. She is spoken of as having been, after the death of her parents, the "good angel" of her brothers, making for them a happy home, encouraging them to all that was noble and good. Col. Jo. Keyes, and Judge Chambers were masons, and Mrs. Chambers has herself taken two degrees.

VII. KEYES, FRANK W. (1536), graduated at the Univ. of Miss. Oxford, was in the 20th Miss. Reg. Infantry, was made Capt. taken prisoner with Floyd's Brigade at Ft. Donnelson, and remained in prison at Sandusky, Isl., seven months, afterwards exchanged. A southern paper of that period speaks of him as "the youngest of a noble family of brothers, who moved into Carroll Co., a few years before the war, all whole souled and generous, and superior to every thing mean, sorded or base." The same paper speaks of him as a "splendid soldier." After the war Capt. Keyes returned to Carrollton to the practice of Law. He was chosen delegate to the Baltimore Convention after the war, and during the administration of Gov. Alcorn, was Prosecuting Attorney for his District. Capt. Keyes m. 1st, 1860, Mary

V. KEYES, THOMAS (1470), s. of Capt. Humphrey and Sarah.

"On the map of Jefferson Co. Va., in the eastern part of school Dist. No. 16, will be found a place designated as Rose Valley. A spring, also marked on the map, commences in that valley, and after meandering gently through a number of meadows, and receiving other rivulets, enters into the Shenandoah. This streamlet, nameless on the map, has been sometimes called the Douglass Branch, from William Douglass, a venerable old gentleman, with snow white locks, fair topped boots and beaming face. Along this branch or stream dwelt various families well known to the dwellers in that neighborhood, the Rutherfords, the Andersons, the Gardners, the Ridenours, &c. Still descending the stream toward its outlet, passing the Brown and Burnett homesteads, the last house we come to before reaching the Keyes Ferry tract, is the place where the late Rev. Thomas Keyes resided, the little stream coursing through his meadow almost in a crescent. At that day circuit preachers of the Meth. Epis. Chh. regularly preached at his house and held class-meeting once a fortnight on week days. A portable pulpit with long rows of benches, occupied the back porch, the whole length of the hospitable old mansion, and these were all brought into the largest room of the house on preaching days. Rev. Thomas Keyes was himself a local preacher and if the preacher failed to arrive, he preached the sermon and led the class himself. The old homestead church of Mr. Keyes, was for pioneer work. The growing congregations of Charlestown and Harpers Ferry, each about four miles distant, gradually rendered it unnecessary to keep up public worship at this rural spot. The place, known as Rose Hill, was afterward occupied by Isaac Chapline, who married the widow of Rev. Thomas Keyes. The place was originally a portion of the Keyes Ferry Tract, but was set off to the Rev. Thos. K., on a partition of the domain among the heirs of Humphrey, son of the 1st Gersham."—Charlestown, W. Va., Paper.

V. KEYES, ELIZA (1475), was b. at Keyes Ferry, and m. 1794, at Halltown, at the house of one of her uncles, Capt. George North, as his 2d wife. She had nine children, "who partook of the restless, roving disposition of her seafaring father and military husband, and are scattered through half the States of the Union to S. America and foreign lands." Capt. North removed about 1790, to Va., from Chester Co. Pa. He res. ten years or more on the Potomac, one mile above Harpers Ferry, in 1801, removed to Mt. Jefferson, a farm of 400 acres, then to Charlestown, then to the neighborhood of Alexandria. The mother of Capt. North was a Swedish lady, Lydia Rambo, who inherited a share in the old Swedish church in Philadelphia, which share is now held undivided by all her descendants. Capt. North inherited from an older brother, Col. Caleb North, his sword, a pair of pistols used by a progenitor at the Boyne water about 1690, and a black charger which had borne him at the head of his troop on many a "hard fought field, especially at Monmouth, in which battle it is supposed that seven of the brothers participated, and concerning which it is said that there is in the family an autograph letter of compliments from Washington himself. The eldest son of Capt. North and Eliza was named William Darke, from Gen. Darke, between whom and Capt. North there was a warm friendship, and the 2d son, owns the golden epaulets, a present to his father from the old General. Capt. North d. at his home in Fairfax Co. Dec. 30, 1814. Mrs. Eliza North was living in Charlestown in 1857, in her 83d year, in "good health and of sound mind," and from her many of these facts were learned.

Here ends the record of John Keyes, son of Solomon, of Chelmsford, Mass.

The following record was found by Danforth Keyes, Esq., now of Warren, Mass., in an old English Bible which had formerly belonged to his grandfather, Col. Danforth Keyes.

It is probable that had the persons mentioned in the list been born, or lived in this country, we should have found some of their descendants. Not having done so, we conclude them to be relatives of the family, of whom we know nothing, born in England or Scotland.

IV. STEPHEN KEYES.

It is recorded in Chelmsford, Mass., that Stephen Keyes and Anna Robbins, were m. in 1706, by Jon. Tyng, Esq., and that Stephen was one of the town committee in Chelmsford, in 1714. This is all we know of his history. He may have been s. of the elder Joseph, who with his brother Sol. settled in Chelmsford, 1664—5. The prevalent tradition is, that whereas, Sol. had a large family and numerous descendants, Joseph has had few, or no representatives among the Keyeses of later days. Stephen may have been his son. I find no record of the death of Joseph in Chelmsford. Probably he removed to some other locality, where Stephen, (if his son) was born, and where both father and son died. I incline however to the theory that Stephen was oldest son of Elias of Sudbury, and ^{great} grandson of Robert of Watertown, and with the exception of Joseph, I know no other parentage he could have had, in the line of Robert or Solomon, who have been supposed father and son, and who undoubtedly were family connections.

V. KEYES, ROBERT (4), s. of Stephen and Anna, m. in Shrewsbury, Dec. 24, 1740, Martha, dau. of Asa and Martha (Eager) Bowker. The birth of all Roberts children but the last is recorded in Shrewsbury, the two last names being found in Princeton, Mass. Robert removed to Princeton, Mass., and settled on Wachusett Mt. Among the most thrilling tales of pioneer life, is that of the loss of his little dau. Lucy, who while playing on the mountain, with her brothers and sisters, probably strayed away, and was missed from the band of children on their return home. The neighbors collected, and search was made ;

she was never found, and the minds of the parents were long distracted with visions of a terrible death by wild beasts, starvation, or the unknown dangers of the forest. The death-bed confession of a former resident of Princeton, revealed the fact of her murder, on account of some business trouble with Robert.

KEYS, JOHN F. (383). The "Biographical Encyclopedia of Ohio, of the 19th century", has given the above particulars of the ancestry of John F. Keys, with the mention of the removal of his father to Baltimore, where in 1801, at the age of 15, the subject of this sketch began his course as a business man in a shipping and commission house.

"In 1809, he was sent to the West Indies on business of great importance to his house. Executing this commission satisfactorily, he returned to Baltimore, and in August of the following year was married to Margaret Barr, sister of Major Wm. Barr. In December of the same year he moved to Cincinnati. Remaining but a few months, in the Spring of 1811 he took up his residence in Chillicothe. There the mercantile house of Barr and Keys was formed and carried on an extensive and successful business until 1815, when he again returned to Baltimore, and became a member of the firm of Barr, Keys and Welsh. But finding it to his taste and advantage, in 1817 he returned to Cincinnati, with a view to making it his permanent home. And there he did, indeed, remain for nearly fifty years, only a few years before his death residing at Glendale.

During the greater part of that long period he was actively engaged in business, and was thoroughly identified with all the best interests of the city. He came to Cincinnati when it was without the pretensions of a city, being but a village. In 1818, he himself built the first three story brick house ever erected in that city. This building stood on the South side of Pearl street. He also built, and for many years occupied, the frame mansion at the foot of Vine street hill, now a part of the McMicken estate, and constituting a part of the McMicken University grounds. This was then in the woods and far beyond the village or town limits. Few men were so long uninterruptedly concerned in the growth and business of the city as Mr. Keys, and doubtlessly no man ever lived more in the confidence and esteem of the people of Cincinnati.

Soon after his location in Chillicothe he was elected Ruling Elder in the Presbyterian church of that place. This position he filled in the various churches with which he was connected until his death.

His family relations were like those of his church and society at large, of the most exemplary character. Four of his family of eight children are living at Cincinnati, and are known as worthy followers of their universally esteemed christian father. At his home in Glendale, on the 19th of May, 1865, this Christian pioneer passed away, with the words upon his lips, "may the Lord not long delay his coming."

Keyes of the late war, which although not strictly in place, we insert, having received it too late for its proper place in the notice of that officer.

"In 1864, in Washington City, Maj. Gen. Keyes of the U. S. Army, (to whom I was introduced by Sec'y Chase,) asked me in a joking way, why he preferred his name to mine. And when I gave it up, the gallant old soldier "with a wink and a smile," said, because I can spell my name with more Ease. (ee.)

A David Keyes, s. of Robert Keyes, b. 1753, removed from Mass., to Middletown, Vt., date of removal uncertain, and ancestry unknown to descendants.

In Sheffield, Mass., is the following record :

84. "David Keyes, s. of Robert, and that which wife Azubah bare to him, was born, Aug. 28, 1763.
 85. Elizabeth, dau. of above, b. Oct. 20, 1754.
 86. Hannah, b. Sept. 26, 1756.
 87. Phebe, b. Aug. —, 1759.
 88. Mary, b. Mar. 5, 1767, d. May 10, 1769.
 89. Jane, b. June 22, 1769."

Robert, father of David was probably (239 of Gen.) and s. of Elias. It seems probable, from the names Robert, David and Azuba in that family. Also, because we have in no other place found Roberts descendants. It is supposed by those most familiar with the records, that 1763, given as the date of David's birth at Sheffield, should read 1753, which was the date of birth of David of Middletown, Vt. The Town Clerk of Sheffield says: "I am of the opinion that it is an error, as all the births that follow are in chronological order, and if this was 1753 instead of 1763 the dates would all harmonize. I have examined the record of quite a number of families recorded in this town, and this is the only instance where the date is in any manner reversed, but follow strictly in order of time."

VIII. KEYES, SETH C. (157), m. and res. in Boston, where his children were born. He was for a time in Danbury, Conn., now res. in N. Y., city. Has been Clothing merchant and farmer, and is now a Carriage merchant, 372 and 374, Broome St., New York. Firm, Keyes & Wilson. Trademark, A. S. Flaudrau & Co. Most of the other children of John B. Keyes, (118), are married and have children and grandchildren, whose names we have not obtained.

VI. KEYES, SALMA (301 of the Gen.), was b. in Worcester Co. Mass., probably in Shrewsbury, ran away from home when a boy, and enlisted in the Rev. Army, in which he served three years. After the close of the war he worked in various places as carpenter and mill-wright. In the year 1790, he settled in Rockbridge Co. Va. He m. Dec. 31, 1795, Polly Andrews, a native of Va., but of Irish Presbyterian ancestry, and began housekeeping about three miles from Lexington, Rockbridge Co. There, the two eldest chil. were born. About the year 1800, Salma purchased some mill property between Staunton and Richmond, in Albermarle Co., where in the beginning of Jefferson's Administration a new Post Office was created, called 'Keyes Mills,' and Salma Keyes appointed P. M. He received a letter from his brother Ebenezer in 1805, the last he ever heard from his N. E. relatives. He seems to have been prospered in business, during his residence there, and five more chil. were added to his family. But his strong dislike to the institution of slavery, prompted his removal to Ohio, in 1810, and in October of that year with such part of his property as he could transport, packed in two wagons, started for the 'far West.' A rougher road was hardly ever passed by wagons, over mountains and through valleys, until the head of the Kanawha river was reached. There one team was left and part of the goods stored, which were carried on by water the following summer. The family pushed on, with one team to the mouth of the Sciota river, in Sciota Co. O., rented a field, and moved into a cabin sixteen feet square, where they passed the winter. They endured great hardships for a time, as did others around them, in reclaiming the wilderness, and making a home. This was particularly hard for the mother, who had been used to all the comforts of a well ordered Virginia farm house. But they had escaped the surroundings of slavery, and after a time bought a farm, and were prospered until 1814. At that time Salma went to Ill., and Ind., prospecting, in which latter State he d. Aug. 1814. Mrs. Keyes kept her family together until 1821, when it being a 'sickly year.' she and her son Andrew died.

CHILDREN.

164. John, b. 1797. Took to the river before his father's death, and followed keel boating. Went to St. Louis, where he married. He had no chil. and his wife died early. He went to Cal. with the first overland train, and subsequently d. there.

165. Polly, or Mary, b. 1799, m. Feb. 1819, Levi Sikes, had three sons, and five daughters, all m. and settled in the vicinity of Portsmouth, O.

166. James, b. 1801, m. April 1831, had two dau. who d. young, and two sons. He res. in Portsmouth, O., and from him we have obtained the above history of Salma Keyes, who had long been lost to his family. He is under the impression that his father had a brother Jonathan. There is an impression among the Maine people, that there was another son, although they call him Thomas. James thinks Solomon must have d. young, as he has no recollection of hearing any mention of him, by his father.

IV. KEYES, JOHN (788 of Gen.), b. June 7, 1749.

IV. KEYES, SOLOMON (789 of Gen.), b. July 18, 1752.

We know almost nothing of this family with the exception of Daniel, who, as will be seen by referring to Gen., married Abiel, or Abial. A stone in the old cemetery in Keene, N. H., bears this inscription: "Widow Abial, mother of Z. Keyes, d. Aug. 19, 1807, aged 78 years." Although this makes Abial 12 years older than her husband, there seems little doubt that the "widow Abial," was the widow of Daniel Keyes (786 of Gen.), and that she had named her son for his grandfather and uncle. She had five dau. and Zebadiah the only son, is supposed to be the youngest of the family.

48. Zebadiah, b. 1776, d. Sept. 16, 1859. He is supposed to have settled in Keene before 1803. He had 9 chil. and a number of his descendants still reside there; among them, his grandson, Francis E. Keyes.

The numbers included in parenthesis for the remainder of part 2d, refer to the Gen.

APPENDIX TO THIRD PART.

VI. KEYES, LUCY (9 of Gen.), dau. of Robert and Martha. The lost child. "The main facts of the child's mysterious disappearance are briefly told in "Whitney's History of Worcester Co.," published in 1795, and copied almost verbatim into both Russell's and Hanaford's Histories of Princeton. The story is also alluded to in a poem written by Prof. Erastus Everett, for the Princeton Centennial Celebration, in 1859.—It was in 1751, that Robert Keyes commenced his pioneering on the slope of Wachusett. The Keyes family was the fourth that settled in Princeton, and the parents were about forty years old, when Robert commenced hewing out for his family a home on the Eastern slope of Wachusett Mountain, in ye township of Princeton, in ye countie of Middlesex, * and Colonie of Mass. Bay. The disappearance of the child occurred in 1755. The next morning after her disappearance, it was observed that the mother's hair had turned from black to gray, and in less than two weeks it was white as snow." The neighbours collected, and by the third day the story had spread, and thousands were on the ground, from Lancaster, Worcester and Barre, and other towns in the vicinity, eager to join in the hunt. The mother became insane, and the father travelled far and long, tracing rumours, often wild and always baseless, and both went down to their graves without a ray of light upon the fate of their lost child.—"Half a century passed away and there lies upon his deathbed, at Deerfield, N. Y., a wretched old man, suffering untold agonies of body and mind. A minister is sent for, and John Littlejohn confesses, that he was the murderer of the dau. of Dea. Robert Keyes, with whom he had a quarrel, about the boundary of their farms." The story of "The lost child, a true tradition of Wachusett Mountain," has been written in an interesting and graphic manner, by William T. Harlow, and printed in "Old and New."

* The northern part of Worcester Co., was originally included in Middlesex.

The two youngest sons of Thomas N. Keyes of Bellows Falls, Vt., (720 of part 2d), were in the late war. Alfred G., (738), was at Winchester, and in the hottest of the fight, while raising his gun to shoot, a shell burst in front of him, a portion of which struck the gun, severing it in two. One part fell to the ground and the other he brought off the field as a trophy. At the same time he received a wound that nearly severed his thumb from his hand. Upon applying to the surgeon, he was informed "he should soon be relieved of his thumb." Anxious to save it, he applied to another surgeon and had it dressed, and although crippled, it is better than none, and another trophy of that field. He now draws a pension.

V. KEYES, ELIZABETH (100 of Gen. 1st part), who m. Joshua Blanchard and had a son, 31. Amos, b. 1773, in Wilton, N. H., pupil in Phillips Academy, afterwards a prominent citizen of Andover, Mass. Cashier, &c.

32. A John Keyes was living in Springfield, Mass., from 1669, to 1671. Name on the town records. Nothing farther known of him.

33. Aaron Keyes, was among the first settlers of Watertown, N. Y. About 1802, he erected a Coopers shop, near what is now the centre of the town. His son, 34. Kimball, lives in Oswego Co., N. Y.

35. Thomas, s. of Kimball, still carries on the trade in Watertown.

36. An Abel Keyes, died a few years since in Algonquin, Ill. His widow still lives there, also a son, 37. Henry.

38. J. L. Keyes, another son of Abel now resides in Des Moines, Iowa. Is clerk of the County Court, and a prominent man.

39. Rev. W. S. H. Keys, D. D., res. at Parsons Rancho, Lewisburg, Penn.

40. Lewis Keyes resides in Wells, Me. His store was burned to the ground during the year, 1878 or '9. His sons and other members of his family res. in Wells.

41. Isaac Keyes was living in Springfield, Ill., within a few years.

42. Sol. Keyes of Cambridge, and Sally Newhall of Leicester, Mass., were published, Jan. 23, 1798, in Leicester.

43. John D. Keyes. This name found on a gravestone in Dixon, Ill.

44. Asenath Keyes and John Ashley were married, date uncertain.

45 Henry Keese was married to Elizabeth Parry, Sept. 5, 1721, by Rev. Nath'l Rogers, Portsmouth, N. H. "This man was a substantial citizen of Portsmouth, paying in 1727, a tax of 22 dollars.

46. Samuel Keese, Town Clerk of Portsmouth, was also a man much respected, as is shown by his seat in the pulpit with the minister."

47. A Samuel Keais m. Widow Mary Hoddy, 1695. Mention is also made in early records of one,

48. Peter Keais. There is no proof that either of the four last mentioned individuals belong to our genealogy.

Keyes, in 307, 311 and 312, of Gen. 1st part, pages 29 and 32, should be spelled Kyes.

Cypron, (282 of 1st part), should have been spelled Cyprian, which is undoubtedly the original method of spelling the name. Descendants spell it, Cyprian, Cyprien, Cypron and Cypren.

On page 253, 16th line, for Samuel, read William.

VI. KEYES, ASHLEY (31 Gen. 1st part), s. of Elisha, and great grandson of Dea. John Keyes. The following is from "The Independant Press," of Greenville, Pa., of Jan. 1853.

OBITUARY.

Ashley Keyes was born Nov. 29th, 1765, at Shrewsbury, Mass., where he spent the first twenty-five years of his life. Thence he went to Vermont and settled at Newfane, in Windham Co., when that country was quite new. There he resided until he was nearly seventy years old, when he removed to Bristol, Ohio. About three years since he came to this borough with his son Benjamin L. Keyes, at whose house he had a comfortable home and received those kind attentions which are so peculiarly needful and agreeable to one weighed down by the infirmities of old age, and where he died on the 27th day of January, (1853), aged 87 years and two months.

It is said that he was a man of remarkably mild and peaceable disposition, and that he never failed to secure the confidence and esteem of those who became acquainted with him. It is believed that he never had an enemy. He was strictly moral during his whole life, and it is thought by his friends that he experienced a change of heart after he had passed his three score years and ten.

The following notice of the death of Naham Keyes, (45 Gen. 1st part), s. of Ashley, is from "The Lake Superior News," of Marquette, Mich., April 10, 1862.

ANOTHER OLD RESIDENT GONE.

We have to announce the loss of another one of our oldest inhabitants—Mr. Naham Keyes, who departed this life April 5th, (1862), of Pulmonary disease, aged fifty two years. Mr. Keyes came to Marquette about fifteen years ago, and was among the first who came with the intention of making it their abiding place. He was a quiet, law abiding citizen, and probably without an enemy in the world, which can be said of few others. Peace to his Ashes.

VIII. KEYES, CHARLES W. (55 Gen. 1st part,) grand s. of Ashley, after his graduation at Williams Coll., travelled a year in Europe, and has since held a prominent and influential position in his native city, Quincy, Ill. "Attorney at Law."
